460 VETERANS MORE REQUEST RETURN FUNDS

Exodus Gains, With 3,056 Applications Received by Veterans' Bureau.

2 B. E. F. PROTESTERS AT TRIAL ARRESTED

Nurse Pays "Mr. Zero's" Fine; Camp Will Hear Gen. Butler Tonight.

The greatest defection in the ranks of the bonus army occurred yesterday when 460 veterans, seeing the futility of remaining here until Congress again convenes, disregarded the pleas of their leaders and made application at the Veterans Bureau for transportation to their homes.

Until 6 o'clock last night a total of 3,056 veterans had asked for transportation to be applied against their adjusted compensation certificates. Of this number 2,478 have departed and the applications of the others are being considered.

There was mild excitement at Police Court yesterday when two veterans were arrested for attempting to organize a protest against the trial of three veterans arrested during the picket of the White House Saturday night. Those arrested yesterday were Alfred Hale, 48, of Detroit, and John Fabroshoski, 39, of Pittsburgh.

Gen. Butler Speaks Tonight.

Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, U. S. M. C., retired, is expected to address the veterans at Camp Marks tonight. The famous marine general accepted an invitation to visit the camp extended by Commander in Chief Walter W. Waters.

Gen. Butler is expected to remain overnight.

Waters also announced the scope of the program of the Bonus Expeditionary Forces would be expanded so as sto include jobs for the unemployed. He does not, however, contemplate the addition of unemployed persons, other than veterans, in the bonus army.

Urbain Ledoux, New York social worker, known as "Mr. Zero," who police charge led the demonstration at the White House, was convicted in Police Court of parading without a permit and was fined $40.

Ledoux pleaded to Judge Isaac R. Hitt that he wats unable to pay the fine and would spend 40 days in jail. Mrs. Mary A. Rochery, who said she was a war nurse and her husband was killed in the service, paid the fine. Mrs. Rochery lives at 318 C street southeast.

Crippled Veteran Fined.

Nathan Kalb, one-armed New York veteran, who lost his arm in Siberia, was sentenced to pay a $25 fine for parading without a permit and $5 for disorderly conduct when he allegedly fought with police who were trying to stop the parade.

Sergt. John T. Langley testified that Kalb kicked him and cursed him when he pulled the flag from his grasp. The defendant denied he struggled with police until after the flag had been wrenched from his grasp and he had been thrown to the ground.

Patrick J. Hannigan was freed of a charge of parading without a permit, but was fined $5 for disorderly conduct. He testified he witnessed the struggle between Kalb and the police and he sa wthe flag fal lto the ground. When he went over to pick it up, he said, an officer grabbed him from behind.

Robertson Heads New Group.

"I took an oath, judge, to protect that flag, at al ltimes," he said, and began reading an oath he had taken when joining the B. E. F. The plea for his acquittal by Defense Attorney Charles E. Ford, a member of the Aviation Corps during the World War, was interrupted frequently by bursts of applause.

After a conference yesterday, Roy W. Robertson, the leader of Capitol picket line, announced the founding of the "Death March Bonus Army." Robertson was elected president. Other officers are Ray Petrie, of Oregon, vice president; oJseph Fobrano, of New York, secretary, and I. S. Schooler, of Texas, treasurer.

Bound for White House.

An attempt of John Pace, of Detroit, leader of the Commuist wing of the army, to join this group, met with failure. He was ordered from the meeting and when he attempted to make a speech, he was shoved along the sidewalk.

The rush at the Veterans' Bureau for loans began as soon as the offices were opened at 9 o'clock yesterday morning and continued until 9 o'clock at night. Most of the veterans said they could see nothing to be gained in remaining in the District during the summer months, while Congress is away.

Robertson today will attempt to obtain an audience with President Hoover to ask that Congress be called in a special session to consider bonus legislation.

Salient Facts on Plan For Great Waterway

(Associated Press.)

This is what the St. Lawrence waterway is:

A 27-foot-deep navigation channel from Montreal to Lake Ontario.

Length—181 miles.

Major construction—Two dams, one at Barnhart Island, one at Chrysler Island.

Electrical power production—2,200,000 horsepower—one-half for the United States; one-half for Canada.

Source of power—Power houses to be built at either end of each dam.

Total cost—$543,000,000, of which the United States will be charged with about $272,483,000 and Canada $270,976,000.

Reductions from the total cost—Revenues from power disposal.

Shipping potentialities — The opening of Great Lakes ports to oceangoing shipping.

Time to complete—Seven to ten years.

MANIU VICTORIOUS IN ROUMANIAN VOTE

Jorga, Friend, and Averescu, Foe, of Carol Are Forced Out in Election.

Bucharest, Roumania, July 18 (A. P.).—King Carol's arch enemy and his close friend both were pushed out of the parliamentary picture in Sunday's general elections on the basis of the latest semiofficial returns tonight.

The power went instead to former Premier Juliu Maniu and his National Peasant party, which won 300 of the 390 seats in Parliament.

The Nationalists of Nicholas Jorga, long a friend of the king and recently premier, will be unrepresented. Likewise Gen. Alexandru Averescu, severe critic of Carol, and his People's party will be out. Neither of these groups received the prescribed minimum of 2 per cent of all the votes cast.

Under Roumanian election laws, every party seeking a mandate must have this minimum, or forfeit the right to be represented in Parliament.

Next in strength to the National Peasants were the National Liberals of J. G. Duca with 22 seats. The straight Peasant party won 14 seats and George Bratianu, who ruled Roumania for many years, won 10 seats.

Secrecy surrounded the movements today of Maniu, who was regarded as the coming premier.

Political circles had it that negotiations were under way between the palace and National Peasant leaders seeking to iron out the differences between the king and Maniu. These differences led to Maniu's resignation as premier two years ago.

League Roster Is at 56 After Turkey Takes Seat

Geneva, July 18 (A.P.).—Membership in the League of Nations was raised to 56 today when Turkey took her seat. She is the last of the nations that were on the German side in the war to become a member of the league.

Kemal Hasnu Bey, the Minister to Berne, took the league seat for his government. Turkey's entry leaves the United States, Brazil and Soviet Russia the only important governments that are not members of the league.

Boulder Kills Smith, Legion Publishing Chief

Estes Park, Colo., July 18 (A.P.).—Robert F. Smith, 41, of Chicago, general manager of the American Legion Publishing Co., was killed while mountain climbing today.

A boulder, rolling down the north slope of Longs Peak, struck him on the head.

BIG WATERWAY LOOMS AS PACT IS SIGNED HERE

Treaty on St. Lawrence River Culminates Long Labors.

27-FOOT CHANNEL TO LAKES ASSURED

President Hails Step as Fulfillment of Promise to Midwest.

(Associated Press.)

The St. Lawrence River treaty, sought for more than a decade to open the great Midwest with a seaway from the Great Lakes to the ocean, was signed yesterday by the United States and Canada.

Secretary Stimson signed for the United States and W. D. Herridge, Canadian Minister to Washington, for the Dominion. There were no speeches, no morning coats, no formalities of any sort as the instrument was executed in the sun-bathed diplomatic reception room of the State Department at 10 o'clock in the morning.

The agreement must be ratified by the United States Senate and by the Canadian Dominion Parliament before becoming effective. Both the Parliament and Congress also must appropriate funds for construction of much of the 27-foot-deep waterway from the St. Lawrence River to the lakes. It will take ten years to complete the project.

Hoover Hails Forward Step.

As the treaty was signed a statement by President Hoover was given out hailing the accomplishment as fulfillment of the promise he made to the people of the Midwest in his campaign for election.

The channel to be built, he said, "will admit practically 90 per cent of ocean shipping of the world to our lake cities of New York, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota."

In Ottawa, Premier Bennet, said the action fulfills his pledge made in Winnipeg, June 1930.

In Duluth, Minn., with Superior, Wis., the largest American port to be linked with the Atlantic by the development, the news was announced by blowing of factory whistles and preparation for a great civic jubilee.

The project will cost the two nations $543,000,000, an amount almost equally divided. In addition to opening the interior to navigation, it will yield approximately 2,200,000 horsepower of electric energy.

Estimates of Cost to Each.

It involves developing the St. Lawrence River for a 181-mile stretch from Montreal to Lake Ontario. Two dams, the upper one at Cryaler Island, 20 miles east of Ogdensburg, N. Y., and the lower at Barnhart Island, 20 miles away, will maintain the depth of 27 feet in the navigation canal, and through power houses to be built

Intensive Drive on 200 Capone Gangsters Opens

Chicago, July 18 (A.P.).—The Herald and Examiner says the Federal Government has started a far-reaching campaign to drive the remnants of Al Capone's liquor syndicate out of business.

At least 200 Chicago gangsters, including Al and Ralph Capone, both now in Federal prisons for income tax evasion, probably will be prosecuted, the newspaper said. New indictments were predicted by the paper to supersede 68 returned a year ago against Capone gangsters. Federal authorities in Chicago refused to comment on the matter except to say that a report had been sent to Washington concerning investigations to date.

Suspected Gambling House 'Given' to Bonus Marchers

Police Raid Finds Place Unoccupied and Move Is Designed to Force Revelation of Its Ownership, Also Shelter Veterans.

After a raid on a suspected gambling house at 24 I street northeast yesterday, the place was turned over to about a dozen bonus marchers by Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police, for a double purpose.

The raiders said that the unoccupied house yielded gambling equipment. Using the house as a tmeporary bonus barracks will take that many men out of the weather. At the same time it will force the owners or agents of the building to reveal their identity, according to Gen. Glassford.

Gen. Glassford stood by yesterday as the gambling squad, armed with crowbars and axes, battered their way into the house. He watched their progress, but took no part in the proceedings. After his men had finished, he turned the place over to the bonus marchers.

It was bare of furniture but was equipped with two telephones, electricity and running water, and the bonus men can keep out intruders with what is left of the heavily barred doors. Police were told that patrons of the place were seen to enter the establishment until about an hour before the raid.

Gen. Glassford said a drive against agents who rent locations for gambling purposes is intended, and residence of the bonus me nin this place will test the legality of guarding an abandoned gambling house until owners or agents explain their knowledge of the former tenants.

Riots in ReichBanned Under Death Penalty

Week-End Political Demonstrations in Which 21 Persons Were Killed Provoke Drastic Decree; All Outdoor Processions Forbidden.

Berlin, July 18 (A.P.).—Bloody political brawls which have kept Germany in turmoil for several weeks impelled the federal government today to forbid all outdoor processions and demonstrations.

The ban was published in the form of a stern emergency decree, in which the government "reserves all further measures to itself and will not hesitate in case of need to proceed severely against groups working with explosives and firearms, even to the extent of standing up against a wall and shooting those caught with firearms or explosives."

These extreme measures would be possible without invoking martial law, as civil courts would be speeded up to the limit to impose death penalties upon persons found guilty.

The government decided on its demonstration ban after a week-end of political rioting in many parts of Germany in which 21 persons were killed and scores injured.

Various suggestions had been made to the cabinet. The Centerists and the trade unions wanted the government to forbid the wearing of political uniforms. Adolf Hitler's National Socialists, who have figured in many of the fights—particularly with Communists—wanted the Communists outlawed. Various political groups asked that a state of emergency be declared.

A ban against political uniforms was only recently lifted under pressure from Herr Hotler, and the cabinet felt it could not reverse itself.

The government admitted that "bans on uniforms and demonstrations were rescinded on condition that the election campaign would be conducted in an orderly manner, but this condition was not fulfilled."

A new Reichstag will be elected July 31. The National Socialists have threatened to arm their storm troops if the government does not put down disorderly elements of the Left, but the cabinet has declared that it will not tolerate the arming of any political organization.

The death toll from week-end disturbances was increased today as several of the injured died, and one new death was marked up in a disturbance at Striegau, Silesia, at noonday. A group of Nazis clashed with Iron Fronters (war veterans), and axes, hose and revolvers were swung freely. Many were injured.

TEXANS HAIL GARNER ASSAULT ON HOOVER

Makes First Campaign Talk in 20 Years; Army Planes Escort His Train.

Dallas, Tex., July 18 (A.P.).—John Nance Garner's sharp thrusts at President Hoover for what he called "legislation for a select clientele" brought forth cries of "Pour it on" from an enthusiastic Texas crowd which greeted the Speaker and his wife at the train here today.

Garner, en route to his home at Uvalde for a vacation, spoke from an improvised platform in the railroad station.

"This is the first time in more than 20 years I have made an electioneering speech," he began, "and the first time in that interval I have addressed an audience outside of the House of Representatives. Either the people of my diserict have a lot of confidence in me or I fooled them so well in my first campaign more than 20 years ago that they have sent me back every term since then."

He said, however, he expected to make many more speeches in the next three months.

"I want to convince every honest man and woman in the United States that the power of government should be taken away from those who administer it for the benefit of a privileged few," he shouted. "I want to convince them that power should be placed in the hands of the party of which I am a member, the Democratic party, to be administered for the benefit of the American people as a whole."

He recounted the stormy scenes in Congress during the last several weeks, when the President twice vetoed bills the Speaker advocated, first disapproving the measure which would have placed $100,000,000 at the disposal of the President for individual relief.

"I trusted the President enough to be willing to leave the distribution of that money to his judgment," h esaid, "but he called it a 'pork barrel.' Then

Curtis Is Free on Bail After Secret Hearing

Flemington, N. J., July 18 (A.P.).—Released on bail, John Hughes Curtis, Lindbergh case hoaxer, was free of his jail cell tonight for the first time since his arrest in May. He was believed to be on his way to his home in Norfolk, Va.

The bulky shipbuilder, who was sentenced last Monday to a year in prison and a $1,000 fine for hindering capture of the Lindbergh baby kidnapers, was elated at his sudden freedom. He was admitted to bail of $10,000 after a secret hearing before Judge Adam O. Robbins, who sat at the trial and passed sentence.

Borah to Be at Hoover Notification if Invited

(Associated Press.)

Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, added another angle to the political situation yesterday when he said, in reply to questions, he would attend the official Hoover notification ceremonies in the White House if invited.

Borah's colleagues have been wondering, in view voicing the administration attitude on war debts last week, whether he was about to get back on the Hoover bandwagon, despite his rejection of the Republican party platform.

AIR FIELDS BOMBED IN BRAZILIAN DRIVE

Federals Also Capture Three Sao Paulo Towns in New Offensive.

Rio de Janeiro, July 18 (A.P.).—The Federal forces of President Getulio Varges today initiated a minor offensive against the Rebels of Sao Paulo.

In the course of a short advance into Sao Paulo, from the State of Rio de Janeiro, three towns were taken, and airplanes bombed the airfields of Sao Paulo City, the capital of the state. It was not known how much damage they had inflicted.

Federal forces today captured Formoso, 15 miles south of Federal headquarters at Resende, Rio de Janeiro State. The Rebels withdrew without a fight.

Gen. Jorge Pinheiro and his Federal troops took the Sao Paulo villages of Passa, Quaro and Sao Jose Dos Barreiros. There were reports of several Rebel casualties in skirmishes required to capture the town.

The loyalist navy halted the Steamer Mariam en routue to Santos loaded with grain. The government has ordered that port closed in an attempt to starve out the Rebels.

A radio message picked up here today said the Rebel government of the State of Sao Paulo had ordered the printing of paper money, indicating its funds were low.

Sao Paulo exporters, the report said, are exerting pressure for peace on the State government.

Orndorff Indicted In Death of Wife

Chum Also Held on First-Degree Murder Writ; Trial in September.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., July 18.—Kermit Orndorff, mountaineer laborer, and his chum, Wayne (Pete) McIlwee, were indicted for first-degree murder here today in the death of the former's wife, Mrs. Frances Nicholas Orndorff, by a special grand jury in circuit court of Frederick County. On motion of Commonwealth Attorney Burr P. Harrison, Judge Philip Williams set the date for the trial on September 6.

Just as the indictments against McIlwee and Orndorff were returned the grand jury requested Mr. Harrison to draft a perjury indictment against Claude Racey, of Star Tannery, who recently swore in an affidavit that he saw Mrs. Orndorff alive two weeks after she was alleged to have disappeared from her home December 29 last.

The grand jury is said to have started to investigate Racey on the perjury charge, but found that as the affidavit was made in Winchester jurisdiction over the affair would come under the corporation court here. Officials intimated the matter would be taken up in the latter tribunal. Neither of the attorneys for Orndorff nor McIlwee asked bail for the defendants.

Robbers Get $63,500 Loot in Gems and Gold

New York, July 18 (A.P.).—After binding a night watchman, burglars early today raided six offices in a sixteen-story building in Forty-sixth street and escaped with jewelry, gems and precious metal estimated to value $63,500.

The building is occupied principally by manufacturing jewelers.

OPTIONAL CUTS IN DEPARTMENT STAFFS HELD UP

Heads May Not Invoke Additional Furloughs This Year.

SEEK EVERY MEANS TO KEEP PERSONNEL

Hopeful Congress in December Will Provide Sufficient Appropriations.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

Administrative furloughs for Federal employes may not be invoked in any department until Congress has had another opportunity to pass on departmental deficiencies.

This appeared likely yesterday after a canvass of the five departments most severely hit by curtailed appropriations. In each case decision on indeterminate furloughs has been indefinitely postponed.

Administrative furloughs are distinguished from the compulsory 24-day "legislative" furloughs ordered in the economy act. The former were to be called into effect at the discretion of department heads, in order to keep within appropriations. The latter are mandatory for all employes making more than $1,000.

While no formal pronouncement was made, it appeared likely last night that every other means will be exhausted in Commerce, Interior, Labor, Justice and State Departments before the additional forced vacations are imposed. These were the departments cut 10 per cent in the Senate.

Plan Shelved Temporarily.

Virtually no use of the plan will be made during this calendar year. If the December Congress shows unwillingness to make up appropriation shortages, and vigorous attacks on expenses fails to bring the departments affected within appropriations, administrative furloughs may be resorted to in the last half of the fiscal year.

Meanwhile, the last Government department that is still debating general use of the five-day week—Labor—neared decision on what distribution it will make of furlough leave. A lengthy conference with bureau heads was held in Secretary Doak's office yesterday. It was said afterward that an announcement is imminent.

From Comptroller General J. R. McCarl came three new decisions on the economy act, one of them of vital importance to 2,300 veteran postoffice employes given temporary exemption by the President from economy act provisions requiring retirement of "superannuated" workers.

The Comptroller told Representatives James M. Mead (Democrat), of New York, chairman of the House committee on postoffice and post roads, that all must retire from the service August 1.

Employes Given Immunity.

The President gave these employes temporary immunity June 30 to allow time for selection of their successors.

The McCarl ruling likewise applies to 39 Federal workers given temporary exemption until the merits of each case could be investigated. Lacking a subsequent White House order giving them permanent exemption, they, too, must go.

The so-called "married workers" clause was put to the test again at the behest of Judge William J. Graham of the Court of Customs and

Irish Press Reprisals Against British Goods

Dublin, Irish Free State, July 18 (A.P.).—There will be "no surrender" to Great Britain in the conflict over Irish land annuities, President Eamon De Valera told the Free State Senate today.

Senator Connolly introduced the government's reprisal duties bill, which would give the president unlimited powers to impose tariffs. This bill is aimed at the new British duties of 20 per cent levied on the principal imports from Ireland. It is the government's intention to rush the measure through all stages in order that, if necessary, duties may become effective this week.

World Court Gets Claim Of Norway onGreenland

Oslo, Norway, July 18 (A.P.).—Norway today submitted her dispute with Denmark about eastern Greenland to the world court at The Hague.

The southeastern tip of Greenland has been in dispute between the two countries for several years, and recently the trouble was submitted to The Hague court. On July 13 Norway announced she was going to occupy another area, a 2-mile strip. Today's development apparently indicated that Norway was resubmitting the issue to The Hague tribunal.

Pinchot Joins With Illinois Quest for Aid

Harrisburg, Pa., July 18 (A.P.).—Gov. Pinchot today applied to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for $45,000,000 in relief funds to aid Pennsylvania's 1,150,000 unemployed.

In a letter to the corporation he also asked that this allocation be made with immediate payment of $10,000,000 to organize relief so that "the starving may be fed without delay."

He also asked for the assurance that the remainder of the $45,000,000 allotment will be available later, so that there may be no delay in payment when at intervals in the course of the next nine months the balance of the money then unpaid will be wanted immediately.

"I know," he wrote, "that in many sections conditions have reached the danger point. I speak the sober truth when I say that delay will mean disorder."

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation yesterday went serenely

G.O.P. CHIEFS REPLY TO HOOVER'S CRITICS

Snell and Watson Credit President With Initiating Economic Program.

(Associated Press.)

Fault finding by Democratic leaders with President Hoover's leadership yesterday brought a reply from Representative Snell that the Chief Executive sponsored all the constructive legislation enacted into law this session.

Answering Democratic claims, Senator Watson, of Indiana, also last night gave to President Hoover the credit for originating the major legislation enacted by Congress.

"His leadership has been preeminent from the very beginning and, if the work done by Congress this session turns out to be successful he is entitled to the credit for originating the ideas," Snell said.

Snell, who shortly will notify President Hoover of his renomination, was commenting on statements issued by Senator Robinson and Representative Rainey, the Democratic leaders, in which they criticized Mr. Hoover, charging lack of leadership.

"I want to say without fear of successful contradiction," Snell told newspapermen, "that on the sixth of last October at a conference at the White House, attended by a delegation of Democrats and Republicans from the House and Senate, the President announced practically the entire program of economic, financial and relief matters just about as they passed through Congress. * * *

"I appreciate that none could have been enacted without cooperation of Democrats in the Senate and House, because there is no real Republican majority in either body. For such cooperation as they gave us I certainly am willing to gvie credit, but I am not in accord with the statement that the President furnished no leadership.

"So far as I know, not a single constructive suggestion coming from the party has been enacted into law."

In a statement issued through the Republican national committee, James E. Watson, Republican leader of the Senate, asserted the "record is so clear that the President can not possibly be deprived of the credit that is his by any statements Senator Robinson or any other Democrats may make."

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, his party's Senate leader, Sunday criticized the administration's lack of leadership and said "much of the legislation which this Nation now regards with hope and optimism sprang from Democratic sources."

The Indianan, holding Mr. Hoover's nonpartisan leadership, but prevented "enactments that would have been disastrous," traced step by step the record he claimed for the Chief Executive, beginning with the organization of the National Credit Corporation last fall. He called attention again to the moratorium and to a statement issued by the President last October 6, in which the latter said that if necessary he would recommend a finance corporation, would propose legislation to expand credit and aid the Federal Lapb Banks.

Credit also was claimed for Mr. Hoover for the home loan bank bill, for urging Government economies and for whipping into shape the second Garner-Wagner relief bill after vetoing the first.

"These and other instances of positive leadership by the President may be cited, leadership that can be contrasted with a complete absence of any program or even plan by the Democrats to aid the country," Watson said. "They did cooperate from time to time in putting through the recommendations he made.

"They are deserving of credit for the assistance thus given. I give it wholeheartedly. But they have not even the proverbial straw at which to clutch when they claim that they originated the constructive legislation that the Congress enacted on the initiative of the President."

LOAN PUBLICITY DISPUTE PERILS OFFICIALS' JOBS

Rainey States R. F. C. Reports Must Be Made Public.

DEFIES HOOVER PLEA TO HOLD CONFIDENCE

Illinois Democrat Threatens Removal of Senate and House Clerks.

(Associated Press.)

A warning that Senate and House officials may have to answer with their jobs if loan reports of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation are not made public was sounded yesterday by Representative Rainey, Democratic House leader.

He said that in spite of the President's statement accepting a contrary interpretation by some Senate leaders of the relief bill publicity section, "these reports will be made public."

In a statement on the $2,122,000,000 relief measure he intends to sign today, Mr. Hoover had said:

"The possible destructive effect upon credit institutions by the so-called publicity clause has been neutralized by the declaration of the Senate leaders of all parties that this provision is not to be retroactive and that the required monthly reports of future transactions are of confidential nature and must be so held by the clerks of the Senate and House of Representatives unless otherwise ordered by the Congress when in session."

Rainey's Statement.

Rainey's statement said:

"The President's statement as to the publicity feature of the relief bill is absolutely erroneous, notwithstanding the fact some Senate leaders made statements on the floor of the Senate as the President said. Newspaper reporters will be able to get the information during the summer by applying to the clerk of the House or the secretary of the Senate.

"If these officials refuse this information they will be guilty of malfeasance and subject to removal, in spite of the President's statement. * * * If they are not made public we will have the clerk of the House and the secretary of the Senate on the carpet when Congress convenes again."

Trimble did not make public the House pay roll, containing the names of members' families employed in their office, until directed by a House resolution.

He said he would study the matter and consult with various members before reaching a decision. Speaker Garner insisted upon the publicity clause, taking the attitude that the loans should be made public.

Senate Secretary Firm.

South Trimble, the House clerk, meanwhile was consulting laws and precedents.

"I am not much on publicity," he commented as reporters recalled it took a House resolution to make him publish the House pay roll.

Rainey said also the fulfilment of the Federal Reserve Bank provision of the relief bill, permitting direct loans to individuals, rested in the hands of Mr. Hoover, Secretary Mills and Eugene Board.

"I don't believe they will ever give any such loans," he said.

Trimble was elected to his place by the House Democratic majority and is subject to removal by the same group.

Edwin Thayer, secretary to the Senate, through election by that body's Republican majority, said flatly:

"I will not make them public without directions from the Senate."

President Will Return From Camp Early Today

Luray, Va., July 18 (A.P.).—Changing his plans, President Hoover remained tonight at his Rapidan camp in the Blue Ridge Mountains instead of motoring back to the White House.

A combination of cloudless skies, warm sun and a cool breeze in the mountains caused him to alter the schedule. He will return to Washington early tomorrow morning, arising shortly after daybreak. Today was the first 24 hours of complete rest the President has enjoyed in many months. He took a brief hike during the morning and in the afternoon enjoyed a nap in his cabin.

TEXT OF PRESIDENT HOOVER'S STATEMENT UPON SIGNING OF ST. LAWRENCE TREATY

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover, in a statement on the St. Lawrence treaty today, praised that agreement but reminded that to take effect it "must yet be ratified by the legislative bodies of the two governments."

The President's text follows:

"The signing of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Waterway Treaty marks another step forward in this, the greatest international improvement yet undertaken on the American continent. The treaty must yet be ratified by the legislative bodies of the two governments and is not effective unless this is done.

"The treaty represents to me the redemption of a promise which I made to the people of the Midwest. It provides for the construction of a 27-foot waterway from the sea to all Canadian-American points on the Great Lakes. Such a depth will admit practically 90 per cent of ocean shipping of the world to our lake cities in the States of New York, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota. Its influence in cheapening transportation of overseas goods will stretch widely into the interior from these points. Its completion will have a profoundly favorable effect upon the development of agriculture and industry throughout the Midwest. The large by-product of power will benefit the Northeast. These benefits are mutual with the great Dominion to the north.

"The waterway will probably require ten years for completion, during which time normal growth of traffic in the Nation will far more than compensate for any diversions from American railways and other American port facilities. The economic gains from improved transportation have always benefitted the whole people.

"Under the estimates, the total cost will be approximately $543,000,000, of which approximately $272,000,000 will need be expended by the United States. Some portion of these expenditures has already been made by both countries, and the actual total amount of new funds to be called on from the United States is estimated at about $258,000,000, and from this sum must be deducted the realization which may be made from about 1,100,000 horsepower on the American side of the international section. The disposal of this power is reserved as a purely domestic question in the United States.

"The question of the effect of the treaty provision covering the diversion of water from Lake Michigan upon the 9-foot waterway from Chicago to the Mississippi has been raised. I may quote the statement I received from Gen. MacArthur, acting Secretary of War, which clarified this question:

"'Dear Mr. President:

"'I am in receipt of your request for a statement from this department in confirmation of the verbal assurances given to you and to the Secretary of State by the Corps of Engineers, that the provisions in respect to the diversion of water from Lake Michigan in the proposed Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Deep Waterway Treaty are sufficient to provide for the maintenance of the 9-foot waterway from Chicago to the Mississippi.

"'I am glad to confirm that the provision in the treaty does provide the necessary diversion for this purpose.

"'Respectfully,

"'DOUGLAS MACARTHUR,
"'Acting Secretary of War.'

"The Canadian project of a two-stage development in the international section has been adopted instead of the original American project of a single-stage development. The cost is slightly more, but the Canadian officials have felt that the two-stage development is desirable for many reasons, among others for the complete assurance of the safety of the City of Montreal.

"The project is of first importance to the whole continent. The many and extremely complex engineering, legal, commercial and international problems have been worked out by the representatives of both countries in a spirit of cooperation of which all North America can be justly proud."

3,000 HOSIERY MILL WORKERS WALK OUT

Cut in Pay Believed Cause of Strike; Many Plants in High Point, N. C., Close.

High Point, N. C., July 18 (A.P.).—A strike started by 300 workers in local hosiery mills this morning spread rapidly during the day and tonight an estimated 3,000 employes had joined in the walkout.

No serious disorders occurred. Mills were picketed quietly, but a group of strikers entered one plant and, after taking charge, sounded the whistles and threw electric switches without, however, doing any damage to property.

The strike appeared to be a spontaneous result of a reduction in wages. Union officials here said they were not concerned, as the workers were unorganized.

A pay scale of $1.50 a hundred pairs of hosiery was put into effect a week ago. The strikers said they should have $2.35 for 100 pairs. Previously they had been paid $2.20 per hundred.

Mills closed were: Adams Millis Corporation, three plants; Harris Covington Mills, Robins Knitting Mill, Triangle Hosiery Co., O. E. Kearns & Son, Thomas Mill, Melrose Mill, and Crown Hosiery Mill.

A statement that no request or demand had been received from employes was made by J. H. Adams, president of the Adams Millis Corporation.

"We do not know yet why they quit," he said.

Strikers were called to attend a meeting tonight at which it was expected the matter of presenting demands to the owners would be considered.

Estimates placed the number of employes out at 75 per cen of the total hosiery mill forces.

More than half the mills in the area are closed. At three large establishments where, it was said, the wage scale had not been reduced from $2.25, operations continued uninterruptedly, and the strikers made no efforts to interfere.

170 Get Jobs Back at Reading.

Reading, Pa., July 18 (A.P.).—One hundred and seventy men went back to work at the finishing mills of the Oley Street and Carsola iron plants of the Reading Iron Co. today, officials of the company announced. All are old employes, no new hands being required.

because I demanded that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation make public its use of $2,000,000,000 of the people's property, he said in effect, 'No, that is for the benefit of my select clientele and the people must not know what is done with it.' We passed that measure anyway. I notice by the morning newspapers he says he will study it a few days and 'probably will sign it.' He means he wants to have a few days in which to find out what Wall street and J. P. Morgan think he should do about it," the Speaker shouted, as the crowd responded with a roar of "Rebel yells."

Planes Escort Train.

He said: "You people here in Texas don't know how much better off you are than people in the larger cities of the East, where thousands are out of work and are hungry." Citing the huge appropriations to aid city and county governments contained in the relief measure, he said, "I hope you people in Texas won't need to ask for a cent of that. I don't believe you want charity—all you demand is an opportunity to work."

Jed C. Adams, of Dallas, Democratic national committeeman from Texas, introduced Garner and presented Mrs. Garner to the audience to speake a few words of greeting, then the train moved southward across the State toward Uvalde.

The train was more than an hour late in reaching Dallas, due to the enthusiastic ovations at every station along the line, after the train entered Texas. A convoy of nine Army planes met the train 50 miles east of Dallas.

CONVENTION PROFIT BIG, CHICAGO SAYS

Outlays for Gathering Returned Ten-Fold; Parties to Get Money Promised.

Chicago, July 18 (A.P.).—The profits from playing host to political conventions, Chicago will tell you, are considerable.

Business men who dug deep into their pockets for funds to bring the Republican and Democratic national conventions to Chicago reported today that original outlays were in many cases returned tenfold.

Even the political parties themselves were guaranteed a satisfactory financial outcome by Edward N. Hurley, chairman of the Chicago citizens' committee which led the way in bringing the conventions here.

"Merchants, hotel proprietors, taxicab companies—the firms that pledged contributions to the convention funds," Hurley said, "are fulfilling their guarantees 98 per cent. That means both parties will get all the money we promised, and most of it already is paid."

Representative of the reaction of big business was a statement from the Congress Hotel convention headquarters for both parties.

"Our business during the conventions," the statement said, "was the best in the 30 years of the hotel's existence. The hotel was filled to capacity and hundreds of guests were turned away."

Reports from the city's two largest taxicab companies, which guaranteed a total of $12,000 to the citizens' committee fund, were even more prosperous. One estimated its extra revenue at $72,000 and the other's was about the same.

Downtown department stores and smaller hotels outside the Loop expressed slight dissatisfaction, but managers of most of them said, "We probably got our share."

BIG WATERWAY IN SIGHT AS TREATY IS SIGNED HERE

at either end of each dam will produce the huge power output. The Crysler site is estimated to produce 529,960 horsepower, and the Barnhart Island one 1,607,000.

The contemplated expenditures are chiefly on this 181-mile stretch. Canada is to have credit for the cost of the new Welland Canal, connecting Lake Ontario and Lake Erie, which is about $128,000,000. This is the largest single item credited to either country for work already done.

It is estimated the cost to the United States of the proposed development will be $272,453,000 and that of Canada $270,976,000. Neither government will pay out anything like these entire sums, because of credits for work already done on the waterway.

Ontario will contribute approximately $109,000,000 to the Dominion's share of construction in consideration of the power which is to go to that province.

New York to Help Pay.

The American payment will be reduced by whatever contribution New York State makes for the construction of power plants. The United States originally asked New York State to pay $150,000,000, but New York objected and offered about one-half that sum for the privilege of marketing the American half of the power, which will be 1,100,000 horsepower.

In Albany yesterday it was figured, though without an official calculation, that the State's share of cost should approximate $85,000,000.

Recently President Hoover informed Gov. Roosevelt—his opponent for the Presidency in the November election—that agreements between New York State and the Federal Government would be made after the treaty was completed. Roosevelt had sought an immediate conference to apportion the cost. Neither New York State nor Ontario Province were mentioned in the treaty, disposition of the power being referred to as domestic matters to be settled within the two nations. President Hoover, in his statement, said revenue from the disposal of the power was counted upon to offset much of the American cost of the whole project.

Water Diversion Proviso.

The treaty provides that no water shall be diverted from the Great Lakes except that taken by Chicago, and that this amount shall be limited to that stipulated by the decree of the United States Supreme Court on April 21, 1930. In this connection, President Hoover gave out a letter from Gen. Douglas MacArthur, as acting Secretary of War, stating that the treaty terms provided sufficiently for maintenance of the 9-foot waterway from Chicago to the Mississippi.

However, the treaty provides that in case of emergency an increase in the withdrawal may be authorized temporarily by a tribunal made up of one representative of Canada, one for the United States and a chairman to be named jointly by both countries.

It was President Hoover who estimated the project would take ten years to complete, revising purely engineering estimates of seven or eight years. He pointed out that during this time "normal growth of traffic in the Nation will far more than compensate for any diversion from American railways and other American port facilities."

Less expenditures already made by this country which are credited in the treaty, he calculated that the United States' share will be only $258,000,000, to be further reduced by revenues from power disposal.

The recommendations of the joint board of engineers, representing the two nations, upon which the treaty was based, are to be made public in detail within a few days.

NOTED CURIE FAMILY DISCOVERS NEW RAY

Beam Hailed as "Amazing" Because Paraffin Is Able to Stop It.

New York, July 18 (A.P.).—Another surprising discovery by the famous Curie family, a ray stopped more easily by common paraffin than by lead, is reported in Nature, British journal of pure science.

The Curies say this ray is probably a beam of neutrons, the almost infinitely tiny things hailed as new "ultimate particles" of matter, when announced recently at Cambridge University, England.

The "amazing" thing, according to American physics authorities consulted today, is the slowing by paraffin. Nothing like it has been found before among penetrating rays.

The Curie discovery results in a simple, vivid picture of the possible nature of neutrons. It is reported by Irene Curie, daughter of Mme. Curie, and F. Joliot, the daughter's husband. They obtained the ray by shooting the heavy "alpha particle" rays of radium, coming from the metal polonium, against a piece of the light metal lithium.

The Curies say the ray proves the neutrons "can not be of an electronic or electromagnetic nature." Their report establishes new evidence for existence of the neutron.

Cache of 16th Century Coins Found.

Moscow, July 18 (A.P.).—A crew of building workers here turned up a clay box while digging which was found to contain a cache of several pounds of old silver coins from the reigns of Ivan the Terrible and other Russian rulers of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. Historical experts who examined the find said they believed rich Moscow merchants had buried the coins during the Polish offensive against Moscow in 1613.

2 STATES IN QUEST OF FEDERAL RELIEF

about its business of considering bank, railroad and industrial loans, leaving for later the problems created by the relief bill which hurtled through Congress at the last minute.

The only break in the monotony of figures showing needs of sundry banks and railroads came when William H. Sexton, corporation counsel of Chicago, and De Witt Billman, right-hand man of Gov. Emmerson of Illinois briefly discussed with the corporation's directors the relief situation in Illinois.

President Hoover is expected to attach his signature today to the relief bill. Pending this, there was no authoritative word on the impending reorganization of the board. The measure provides that the Secretary of the Treasury and "six persons appointed by the President" within ten days after enactment shall constitute the board of the corporation. This removes from the board Eugene Meyer, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, and Paul Bestor, Federal Farm Loan Commissioner, leaving vacancies to be filled by presidential appointment. The corporation has had no president since Charles G. Dawes resigned to return to the banking business in Chicago, but will elect its own.

The relief bill creates a fund of $300,000,000 to be loaned to the States and Territories for direct relief of destitution. No one State can obtain more than $45,000,000 for this purpose.

It also provides for loans to States and municipalities to aid in financing public works and for construction of toll bridges and for loans to corporations formed for lending money for building homes and to corporations constructing certain types of projects.

Illinois representatives are in Washington to seek money to keep open relief stations throughout their State. After their brief conference with the directorate, Sexton and Billman got in touch with Gov. Emmerson by telephone and outlined to him the form of application.

"Cook County will have to close its relief stations Friday unless we get immediate help," Sexton said. "Other sections of the State are in a similar situation."

Auto-Risk Dealers Seek Rule on Law

Virginia State Corporation Board Holds Decision on New Statute.

Richmond, Va., July 18 (A.P.).—The State Corporation Commission today took under advisement questions as to its jurisdiction and representation, raised by automobile insurance dealers in a hearing preliminary to the organization of the new State Automobile Insurance Bureau of the commission, prescribed by the 1932 General Assembly.

The stock companies claimed representation in the new bureau should be in direct proportion to the business done in the State, while the mutual companies contended that representation should be equal. It developed that approximately 90 per cent of the business done in Virginia is by stock companies.

Figures introduced at the hearing showed that net premiums received from automobile liability insurance in Virginia during the past year totaled $2,442,638.97, and net losses paid by all companies doing this kind of business in the State were $1,636,241.18.

T. A. CLARK, PIONEER DEAN OF MEN, DIES

Famous Authority on Youth Psychology Was Official at Illinois U.

Urbana, Ill., July 18 (A.P.).—Thomas Arkle Clark, America's pioneer dean of men, is dead.

He who knew more men personally than perhaps any other campus personality died today of an ailment diagnosed as cancer. He had been ill since his retirement from the faculty of the University of Illinois last August. He was 70 years old.

Dean Clark was the originator of the office from which he retired in the summer of 1931. He was distinguished in educational and fraternal circles, a prolific writer and a tireless public speaker.

His mastery of student psychology brought him national fame. It led to his being charged by students of heading a widespread, impregnable campus spy system.

Publicly Dean Clark never denied these charges. Privately—not many months before his death—he laughingly admitted that his "spy system" was for the most part the product of student imagination.

"Of course, I get information about erring students from sundry sources," he said, "but for the most part guilty students tell on themselves."

It was his habit to figure out, by theory, what student was responsible for what indiscretion. Then he would call in the suspect, ask a few pointed questions and sit back while the student confessed everything. Once the culprit told, he was often astonished to find Dean Clark a merciful disciplinarian.

Funeral services will be held at 3:30 p. m. Wednesday in Urbana, with the Rev. J. H. Gardner, jr., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Urbana, in charge.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

DEPRESSION: SUNNYSIDE UP.

(Being a second installment of items tending to prove that a depression has its good points.)

IT'S relieved the children of the idea they should have an automobile of their own.

It's rid wives of the notion that when you take them on a vacation you should also take their folks.

It's made it possible for you to ask the price of things in stores and shops without being taken for a piker.

It's made it possible for a man to play golf even if he couldn't afford a caddie, a $75 leather bag or all the latest wearing apparel, including the $22.50 shoes.

It's brought back the fifteen-cent bottle of ginger ale, the five-cent cup of coffee and the nickel "hot dog."

It's eliminated the "gyp" taxicab.

It's killed off the fellow who was always trying to let you in on the ground floor of something.

It's disposed of the fellow who knew a fellow whose cousin knew a fellow who knew somebody who was close to Morgan.

• • • •

IT'S rid the country of a lot of fellows who never should have been rich anyhow and didn't know how to act when they had it.

It's cured the voting public of the silly notion that any political party has a copyright on prosperity, that any President of the United States is a Houdini and that superman ever go into politics.

It's destroyed the ancient belief that a man was necessarily a big man because he held a big position in a big industry.

It's sunk the moronic idea that when really big financial houses are putting through any important financial plans they do it with so little secrecy that every brokerage house is able to send out a letter giving its customers all the dope in advance.

It's shown the country that a "master mind" is not much different from any other mind, once you get it away from the artificial scenery and the manufactured atmosphere.

It's shown most people that they didn't need many things they had, anyhow.

It's demonstrated to many citizens that what they thought was serious stomach trouble was just biliousness due to eating too much rich food.

It's cleaned the kitchen of a lot of jugs and bottles, and made it possible to find room for kitchen utensils again.

It's removed a lot of marble ornaments from front lawns, where they looked pretty ridiculous in the first place.

• • • •

IT'S made the average man think twice before rushing to an expensive specialist every time his head ached, and it's made the women a little more careful about having a general going over by the town's most expensive doctor whenever their feet hurt.

It's brought the price of chicken down where even a chain restaurant proprietor is conscience-stricken when he slices it too thin.

It's eliminated most of the loud-talking in smoking cars and made it possible to ride in a club car without hearing a general conversation on coming mergers and split-ups.

It's brought the country a good 50-cent lunch, wiped out the cover charge and made it possible for a man to get his hat back in a restaurant or hotel without giving the girl a dollar.

It's reduced the bootlegger to a level where he has to fight for a living just like the rest of us.

HEAR! HEAR!

Count that day lost when no headlines appear:
"Hi Bingham Puts in Bill for Vote on Beer."

It is understood that Bill Dickey, the Yankee catcher who was fined $1,000, calls himself a member of the "In-the-Red Socks."

POOR JUDGMENT.

"Bandits Rob Roosevelt Hotel."—Headline. Yeggs must be getting optimistic when they choose a hotel as place to find money.

JOHN HUGHES CURTIS, who so cruelly fooled Col. Lindbergh, has been given a year in jail. This seems inappropriate. Why not make him serve the sentence on a rudderless yacht in midocean, using crossword puzzles for charts and a dollar clock for a compass?

OPTIONAL FURLOUGH PLAN IS POSTPONED

Patent Appeals. The question came up of dismissing two $1,260 messengers employed at the court, when two $1,440 messengers, whose wives work for the Government, are on the court roles.

The Comptroller ruled the married messengers must be discharged, unless the court wants to resort instead to the administrative furlough. In the latter case, he said, the $1,260 messengers could be placed on payless leave, and the married messengers continued in office.

A third ruling, rendered for the benefit of Secretary of the Navy Adams, guarantees mileage allowances for Naval Academy appointees from their homes to the academy.

"You are authorized to pay midshipmen at the rate of 5 cents per mile for travel performed," ruled the Comptroller.

Other Orders Expected.

Additional executive orders are expected daily from the White House, one passing on uniform sick leave requirements as recommended by the International Board of Simplified Office Procedure, another carrying out administrative furlough recommendations of the Council on Personnel Administration.

The sick leave recommendations are being scrutinized by Director of the Budget J. Clawson Roop preparatory to submission to President Hoover. Sick leave was not affected by the economy act. An administrative move has been made, however, to bring sick leave allowances of various departments more nearly in harmony.

Departments most seriously affected by Senate appropriation cuts are resorting to every strategy to save personnel. In the Commerce Department, for example, bureaus liberally provided for must retrench in order to share some part of their funds with bureaus cut below operating costs. The economy act provision permitting transfers up to 12 per cent of an appropriation will be taken full advantage of, it was said.

Newport News, Va., July 18 (A.P.).—A new clinic was dedicated here today by the Elizabeth Buxton Hospital with public ceremonies, at which Gov. John Garland Pollard of Virginia and Dr. Dean Lewis, professor of surgery at Johns Hopkins University, were the principal speakers. The clinic, erected and equipped at an approximate cost of $100,000, was thrown open to the public from 10 to 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Tonight the graduation exercises of the nursing school, held at Trinity Methodist Church, marked the climax of the day's exercises. Twelve young women were presented diplomas by Dr. Joseph T. Four hundred men, women and children, gathered on the lawn, heard the governor claim for his administration a reduction in total taxes levied on general property for all purposes, a cut in the cost of State government and a beginning toward scaling down the prices paid for utility services in this State.

AMERICANS MOURN JUSSERAND'S DEATH

Hoovers Voice Sorrow of Nation at Passing of French Diplomat.

Paris, July 18 (A.P.).—Jean Jules Jusserand, for 22 years French Ambassador at Washington and long the dean of the Diplomatic Corps there, died today of a kidney ailment. He was 77 years old.

Mr. Jusserand was retired from his post at Washington in 1924, but to the day of his death he remained a firm friend of America. A member of the household said that among his last words were these:

"My fervent hope and conviction is that France and the United States will eternally remain united and friendly."

The aged diplomat died painless, his wife's hand clasped in his. For some time his health had been delicate, but death had not been expected. Only last night he seemed in good condition, repeating to his wife from memory numerous poems of Browning.

A funeral service is being planned in the Church of St. Pierre de Chaillot. Gen. Gouraud has suggested a funeral with military honors. Interment will be in the cemetery of the home of his ancestors, the village of St. Hson de Chatel, in the Department of the Loire.

(Associated Press.)

The American Embassy at Paris has been instructed to deliver the following message from President Hoover to Mme. Jusserand:

"I am sorely grieved to hear of M. Jusserand's death and Mrs. Hoover and I send you our sincere sympathy in your bereavement. France has lost a distinguished and loyal citizen and the United States a true and firm friend whose wonderful influence for right and justice has meant so much in our relations with France. We mourn with our sister republic the passing of this truly great man."

Secretary Stimson said:

"I have just learned with deep regret of the death of Mr. Jules Jusserand. No man in recent times did more to cement the traditional friendly relations between France and the United States as ambassador in Washington from 1902 to 1925. He became in a very real sense a national figure in this country. In his relations with this Government he typified the highest ideals of frankness and fair dealing in diplomacy. His profound scholarship and his literary skill gained for him worldwide recognition outside the field of his chosen profession. After his return to France, he continued in his articles and addresses to manifest his great interest in American affairs and in the maintenance of friendly relations between France and this country. I am deeply touched to learn from the statement which Mme. Jusserand issued this morning that his last words were in regard to his love for America. His many friends in this country will regret the departure of this great diplomat and man of letters."

Was Enthusiastic Walker.

Jusserand was one diplomat who could outwalk President Roosevelt. When he was in Washington many men from many countries walked with the President of the United States. Some of them had a hard time keeping up with "Teddy the Strenuous," but liked the prestige that intimacy gave them in their own countries.

Long after Roosevelt's departure from official life, Jusserand pursued his walks through little-trod lanes and paths of Rock Creek Park and similar arboreal retreats about Washington. He knew every path along both sides of the Potomac above old Georgetown, but it was the rougher part of that wonderland which Grant saved for the National Capital that Jusserand loved best.

Nearly every morning in the last years of his service in America, Jusserand and his wife were driven out Sixteenth street extended, over the stone bridge with approaches guarded by their famed lions and lionesses. Once across, Jusserand left the phaeton and struck up the hill to the left. The carriage remained and Mme. Jusserand waved to her husband as he turned to blow kisses at her.

Just as he plunged out of sight among the trees an "oo la la" would sound to the ear of a discreet watcher and then madam would return a kiss with both hands semaphoring from her lips.

Canadians Ask Britain To Cut Duty on Tobacco

Ottawa, Ont., July 18 (A.P.).—Representations from the tobacco growers from Quebec for a reduction in the British excise duty of $1.50 per pound on imports of Canadian grown tobacco were heard today by Robert Weir, minister of agriculture. A large delegation of producers, numbering between 400 and 500, made the trip to the Capital, headed by three members of Parliament.

While appreciating that Canadian-grown tobacco enjoyed a preference of 50 cents per pound in the British market, the growers nevertheless believed that an extension of that preference to $1 per pound was necessary in order to benefit the producer in this country.

POWER PLANT CASE ARGUMENTS START

Newton D. Baker Is Among 200 Lawyers at Norfolk Hydro-Electric Trial.

Norfolk, July 18 (A.P.).—Arguments in the case of the Appalachian Electric Power Co. against the Federal Power Commission, in which the power company is seeking a court order toprevent the Power Commission from interfering with the building of a gigantic hydroelectric plant on the New River in Pulaski County, were begun in the Federal district court, Judge Luther B. Way presiding, here today.

The importance of the case, because it is regarded as having a far-reaching effect upon the question of the right of States to control their own water power, and the fact that former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker was appearing as counsel for the Appalachian company, attracted more than 200 lawyers to the courtroom.

Mr. Baker was not heard today, but tomorrow is expected to present some of the arguments in behalf of the power company.

Baker Takes Notes.

Counsel for the Federal Power Commission took up the whole day today in arguments on the commission's motion to dismiss a suit brought by the power company to prevent interference by the commission with the building of the project. The principal argument was presented by Huston Thompson, of Colorado, former chairman of the Federal Trade Commission and at present a special assistant to the Attorney General of the United States, who is appearing in the case for the Federal Power Commission.

Mr. Baker sat at counsel's table, taking a few notes on what was being said, and interposing a remark occasionally during the proceedings.

R. Gray Williams, Winchester attorney, appeared in court early and asked for permission, on behalf of the Attorney General of Virginia, to appear as a friend of the court to protect the interests of the Commonwealth of Virginia, which is not a party to the action, but is interested in seeing the power project which will call for an expenditure of about $10,000,000 completed.

Federal and State Aims.

Judge Way, who is sitting in the case for Judge John Paul, of the Western District of Virginia, in whose district the action originally was brought, said he felt that the Commonwealth of Virginia should be allowed to appear in the case as an intervenor, but on a request from Mr. Thompson, postponed until tomorrow any action on Mr. Williams' request.

Mr. Thompson said he thought it proper for the State to be allowed to appear in the case, but not as a friend of the court, because the State's interests were hostile to the Federal Power Commission.

Mr. Williams told Mr. Thompson and the court there was no doubt but that the State's stand on the question was hostile to the commission's attitude and that the State Attorney General was inerested in seeing the power project developed by the power company.

Prize Essays Are Given Virginia State Library

Richmond, Va., July 18 (A.P.).—Three prize winning essays on improvement of conditions in Virginia counties were turned over to the State Library today by J. H. Montgomery, executive secretary of the Virginia Cooperative Education Association.

They have been in possession of the association for some time, but Mr. Montgomery said the material in them was valuable and should be available to the greatest number of persons. They were written by George A. Jordan, of Bohannon, Va.; W. L. Tiller, of South Hill, Va., and William M. Brown, former candidate for Governor of Virginia.

Richmond-Petersburg Service to Be Curtailed

Richmond, Va., July 18 (A.P.).—The State Corporation Commission today granted the Virginia Electric & Power Co. permission to curtail service on the Richmond-Petersburg Electric Line, with provisions that the line will operate on a faster schedule, and change the location of its terminal in Richmond.

Under the commission's order, effective July 24, the number of round trips will be reduced from 22 to 17 daily. The service will be on a two-hour schedule instead of hourly. The running time between the two points will be reduced by 12 minutes.

Representative Britten Sues Harriman's Firm

New York, July 18 (A.P.).—Representative Fred A. Britten, of Illinois, former chairman of the House military and naval affairs committee, filed suit in supreme court today against Harriman & Co., brokers, and eight members of the firm, seeking $46,987 for alleged misrepresentation in the sale of stock.

He averred he bought 3,000 shares of B stock of the Southern Dairies Corporation in 1929, with the understanding that the Kraft Cheese Corporation was planning to take control of Southern Dairies and the stock would increase in value. He charged these representations were false and fraudulent.

BLACKBERRY JELLY.

(Bureau of Home Economics.)

Blackberry jelly is preferred by many people to blackberry jam because the jelly has all the delicious fruit flavor without any of the seeds. It is only a little more trouble to make jelly than jam. The chief additional labor is straining the juice after the berries are cooked.

Flavor and texture are the two points by which a jelly is judged, according to Fanny W. Yeatman, a specialist in the Bureau of Home Economics, who has given a great deal of attention to jelly making. Color and sparkling clearness are also important. But the delicious fresh fruit flavor should be so definite that no one needs to ask "What kind of jelly am I tasting?" and the tender, quivering texture should permit the jelly to be cut with a spoon yet be firm and shapely. Good jelly is never gummy, sticky or syrupy.

In making blackberry jelly, as with jelly from other summer fruits—black and red raspberries, currants and grapes—a mixture of underripe fruit often gives the most satisfactory results. The underripe berries give the best texture and the ripe the best flavor. Adding one tablespoon of lemon juice to each cup of blackberry juice just before it is combined with the sugar improves the jelly.

Wash the fruit thoroughly, but do not let it soak, and be careful not to break the tender skin. Make jelly from 6 to 8 pounds of washed blackberries at a time. This quantity is easy to handle and can be cooked quickly. The long cooking necessary with large quantities tends to destroy the fresh fruit flavor and rich colors. Crush some of the fruit to start the flow of juice and boil it rapidly for three to ten minutes, stirring all the time. From one-quarter to one-half cup of water may be added for each pound of blackberries without diluting the flavor of the jelly too much.

Canton flannel jelly bags are best for straining the juice. They are made with the fuzzy side in. A bag of double thickness, good quality cheesecloth also is satisfactory. Suspend the bag from a wire rack or wooden support. When the flow stops press the bag lightly with the flat sides of two knives, but do not squeeze it. If the fruit is scarce, the drained pulp may be boiled up again with half its measure of water for eight or ten minutes to make a second extraction of juice. This second extraction is likely to be fairly rich in pectin and rather poor in flavor, but combined with the first it makes jelly of satisfactory quality. For extra fine jelly make one extraction only.

When the juice has been obtained from as much as 8 pounds of berries it is better to divide it into two parts and cook each separately with the sugar. As a rule a pound of fruit yields about a cup of juice, and 4 to 6 cups are enough to work with at once. Use a large flat-bottomed saucepan, so that evaporation will be rapid, and stir until the sugar is dissolved. For blackberry jelly add ¾ cup of sugar to each cup of juice and 1 tablespoon of lemon juice. Too little sugar gives a tough, unpalatable jelly and too much makes a runny, syrupy jelly. The mixture of fruit juice and sugar should be cooked down rapidly until it makes very heavy drops that run together before they fall from the side of a spoon. This blending of heavy drops is called sheeting off and is the best home test for the proper concentration of the jelly.

The finished jelly is poured out into low sterilized hot jelly glasses. Take care to pour the jelly into the middle of the glass, so that no drops stick to the sides above the level of the jelly. Then when the jelly has set the hot paraffin that is poured on will make a tight seal. To insure a high, close-fitting seal rotate the glass while the layer of paraffin is still liquid. Jelly, like all other home-preserved products, should be labeled with name and date of making and then stored in a cool, dry place.

Ink Reported Removed From Old Newspapers

Asheville, N. C., July 18 (A.P.).—Ink can now be removed from old newspapers, making possible remanufacture of the pulp with a resultant saving of at least 50 per cent in the cost of white paper, James Flett, of Chicago, told the thirteenth annual convention of the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association here today.

Flett, head of a waste paper disposal organization, demonstrated the discovery, using a new type of ink and remover. He said directory publishers in Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Milwaukee, New York, Detroit, Pittsburgh and other cities had already accepted the method as commercially practical.

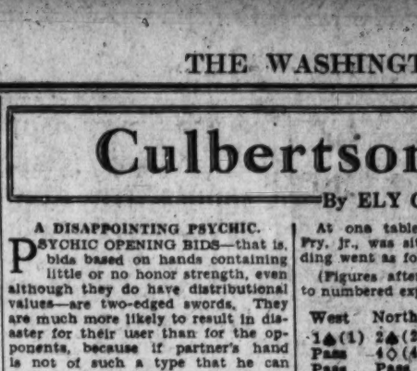
A DISAPPOINTING PSYCHIC.

PSYCHIC OPENING BIDS—that is, bids based on hands containing little or no honor strength, even although they do have distributional values—are two-edged swords. They are much more likely to result in disaster for their user than for the opponents, because if partner's hand is not of such a type that he can easily spot the bluff nature of the opening bid, he is quite likely to eventually double an adverse contract which may easily be made.

Recently, in a Duplicate game at a New York Bridge Club, the following hand was dealt:

West—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



At one table, where Mr. Samuel Fry, Jr., was sitting South, the bidding went as follows:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

West	North	East	South
1♠(1)	2♣(2)	Pass	3◇(3)
Pass	4◇(4)	Pass	5◇(5)
Pass	Pass	Dbl.(6)	Pass
Pass	Redbl.(7)	Pass	Pass
Pass

1—West, with a trickless hand, but with possibilities of considerable offensive power in his freak holding, hopes to possibly prevent the bidding of a game and almost certainly the bidding of a Slam by the deceptive Opening bid.

2—North is undisturbed. Holding 5 honor-tricks, he correctly makes an immediate Overcall in the opponents' bid suit, and thus requires that the bidding be kept open until North and South reach a game contract.

3—Of course, the only response.

4—North need not hurry. Possibly South may be able to bid hearts. In that event, the bidding will be kept open until game is reached.

5—South rather unwillingly bids for game.

6—While East by this time is assured that his partner's Opening bid was purely a bluff, with 2 trump tricks he can not be blamed for the Double, as he feels that he can defeat the contract in his own hand.

7—Playing for a top.

The contract of five diamonds, redoubled, was, of course, made laid down, the only losing tricks being the Ace and King of trumps.

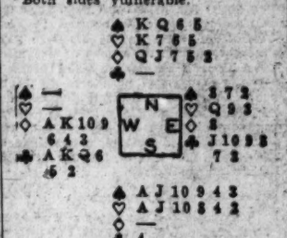
TODAY'S POINTER.

The Overcall in opponents' bid suit is one of the five Forcing bids used by good Contract players. Neither partner, after an Overcall of a suit bid by opponents, may drop the bidding until at least a game contract has been reached.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

West—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"CANCER."

IF July 19 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:15 a. m. to 11:45 a. m., from 4 p. m. to 5:25 p. m. and from 8 p. m. to 9:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 9:30 a. m. and from 2 p. m. to 3:30 p. m.

The Fates will apparently be benevolent on July 19, and there will be very few knock-out blows delivered on this date. Most controversies will be "clearing up" storms, and the day should end with kindly feelings toward all the world. Some surprising developments in the business world may arouse general interest.

The disposition of the child born on this July 19 will be more morose than congenial, although its smile can be most disarming. It may receive a mediocre intelligence rating, but will be capable of startling the world with occasional flashes of brilliancy and wit. Continued great effort is out of its line, but it will display feverish spells of explosive endeavor.

You were not born with a silver spoon in your mouth. If born on July 19, although in conditions of comparative affluence, you were faced with difficulties—possibly in the home. You have overcome these and risen superior to influences which would have dragged down one less high-principled and less able to contend with opposition. Again, too, if born in a state of genteel or dire poverty, you have, by your sterling worth, conquered these handicaps, and are self-made without feeling it necessary to worship your creator.

Your disposition is a generous one, and your sympathies are wide and tolerant. In no sense of the word are you narrow-minded or ultra-conventional. You have your own particular creed of life, and live up to it and abide the consequences. One of your most engaging qualities is your readiness to admit your own mistakes and to make amends for them. Considerate of others, you do not offend either by deed or word. You realize that "more flies are caught by molasses than by vinegar." In marital relations, be you man or woman, you will be loyal and constant, and will be not only husband or wife, but a reliable pal "in all sorts of weather."

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

THE CHANGING FEMALE.

SEVERAL reports are agreed that the college boy and girl of the present day are better physical specimens than their predecessors were. A report to this effect, based on careful and extensive physical measurements of boys, comes from the University of Minnesota. This space has been used to comment on similar reports based on measurements made on girls in California. If there have been reports of this kind made on students in Southern institutions I have not seen them, but that does not mean that such studies have not been recorded.

Several reasons for the improvement in the racial stock are offered. One is that people are better fed than they have ever been before. It has even been claimed that when the short, stocky Jap is well fed from childhood he develops into an adult larger in stature than the average of his race. Another claim is that improvement is a result of greater use of athletics and a change in physical ideals.

I recently had an opportunity to observe the students in a large Eastern school for girls. The number of pupils in this institution is around 2,000. The school enjoys a reputation for sound and progressive scholarship. The mental training given is not a matter of comment here. This recital deals with the physical development of the members of the student body and the machinery for that.

There is a physical examination on entrance and health service during the school years. Participation in some form of competitive sport is a part of the curriculum. A girl may elect the sport she wants to engage in, but she must take at least a minimum amount of work at one, and opportunities are given for engaging voluntarily in others. If the college has any records for prizes won by specialized groups in anything I do not know of it, but I am certain that no school could far excel them in mass average excellence in any of the standard sports.

But probably of equal import is the general spirit of everyday performance of the regular activities of life. The girls walk upright, with head and shoulders held high, and back straight. They walk as though they were on the way and intended to get there. It is the fashion this year to wear socks rather than stockings. Their legs show muscles. It is the custom to wear broad shoes with low, broad heels. They ride bicycles a great deal and they show the results in the way they walk and stand. That standing pose strongly suggests that they may have had a major course in carrying a bucket of water on the head. One further suspects this when he sees the good neck muscles and the straight, well held backs and shoulders.

PLAN PLEASANT DREAMS.

C. G. A. writes: What is the cause of excessive dreaming during sleep?

REPLY.

Nervous excitement, worry, anxiety. Dreaming is just as natural as thinking. When a man complains of his dreaming it is because of the vividness and the generally unpleasant subjects of which he dreams. If he can overcome his anxieties and fears and can limit his thinking to subjects that give pleasure, his dreams will bring happiness and relaxation.

NOTHING TO WORRY OVER.

C. D. E. writes: I am nearly 61 years old. I was always stout and healthy. About seven years ago my hands began to get nervous, noticeable only in writing, and with no pain. I sleep and feel good. Please give me cause and cure.

Your history indicates that you have paralysis agitans. Your writing does not indicate that it has progressed far. Nobody knows the cause of this trouble when it does not follow some brain disease. Nobody knows a cure for it. Fortunately, in most instances, it is very slowly progressive and is almost without tendency to destroy life. Most persons who have it live beyond three score and ten. In fact, they seem to hold on to life quite as well as do others of their age groups.

Interpreting the Mode

Tailored in effect and smart, are these beige linen pyjamas, with their red linen jacket, pyjamas and jacket both stitched for trimming. The jacket is removable to show the sun back. (Courtesy of Molyneux, Paris.)

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., July 18.—"You see so many, many women," said I to the great physician.

"Yes."

And in what a tone!

So-o-o-o-o-o, says I to myself, why that, why that?

'N' I asked him.

'N' being a man as well as a brain, he told me. Boiled down, it amounted to the fact that by the time women got to a physician, they were so unlovely that they were sick over themselves. Their very illness springs from unloveliness and its consequent state of being unloved. Yet they think that their ailments make them unlovely.

Not all women, of course, who are ill. Never mind, you probably are the exception. But if you are ill, and cling to loveliness with all your heart and mind—know something? It will make you well. Yes, it will—because it will bring things into your life that will change your viewpoint, and make you well.

Are you unlovely? If so, you are ill!

Are you ill? Probably you are unlovely!

Think it over, my deah. Because, after all, he is a famous physician—and he does see from 20 to 50 women a day—years on end—and he says that 90 per cent of the women he has ever seen as patients—are unlovely, unloved and consequently ailing.

* * * *

Gollywoggles, but I feel well and strong after that! Next time I "feel pale" I will cast around for a new facial—honest I will. Meanwhile, on with my sun suit made of two bandanna handkerchiefs, and out into the sun will I go, go, go * * * oh, yes, it covers me, this suit, and it is as cute as a bug's earwacker—and cost about as much as one, too. For it's made from two hankies, 5 cents apiece. 'Nif you want to know how to make one for yourself, just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet which tells you how to go about it. 'N' out into the sun we will go, for, oh, lotsa reasons!

* * * *

Molyneux gives us tailored pyjamas today—of ultra chic, my deah—beige linen, with a red linen jacket, all long sleeves and protecting against the sun. But if you want sun, off with the red jacket, and there is the backless back of the pyjamas. 'Twas Molyneux who first sponsored the masculine beach wear for miladi, you remember.

* * * *

Higher we will go, higher, higher—to the higher neckline, my deah! Yes, and it matters not whether this be for sportswear or evening wear—so long as there is enough epidermis exposed elsewhere in the evening gown. If you haven't tried the higher neckline, do—it is rather flattering, and certainly chic.

Yes, I do approve of the varitinted nails, as so many of you have asked me. Why not tint your nails a different color for different occasions? Not to mention different moods.

Personally, I mix my lovely silver with colorless polish, these days—and flash silvery-flesh finger tips at whatever happens to be in flashable range—comprendre?

Au revoir!

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

Don't Pine for Lovely Figures Get Busy and Get That Way

IF you've spent a day at the beach recently, you've seen all sorts of figures and heard plenty of talk, I'll warrant. And you'll agree that more women Wish for the perfect form than Work for it. Of course, it is quite the natural thing to envy the young, lithe, perfectly proportioned figure, and the 1932 requirements are: Firm but rounded, flowing lines, beautifully molded, bones well covered, but no excess padding in the form of bulges of accumulations. It's the order of the day and a pretty hard order at that, but it can be done and is being done daily. Proof enough in the many, many perfect forms revealed in the most abbreviated and revealing of bathing costumes.

Too Thin?

Tables have turned completely turtle, and the boyish form, which occupied the beauty pedestal a few years ago is now pronounced the very antithesis of feminine beauty. It's called skinny, scrawny and shapeless. And it is, too. Curves are not as hard to acquire as some painfully thin individuals would have you think. A physical examination is the first step, and a careful pursuit of doctor's orders the next. And our thin friends should reverse the stout order of less food and more exercise, and take more food—rich, nourishing food—milk, eggs, plenty of butter, mayonnaise dressing on salads. They should "let go"—take life less seriously and learn the value of relaxation.

Develop Where You Want To.

My weight-gaining bulletin will tell you how to put on the pounds. And if you are scrawny in spots, exercise and massage with a good cream will help to turn angles into rounded contours.

Want to Reduce.

If in spite of the vogue for rounded contours, you feel you got more than your share, you can easily and quickly work off the excess by going easy on food and hard on the exercise. Summer is an ideal time to do it, too. And the reward is threefold. You look that much better on the beach, you enjoy summer sports and activities that much more, and you're all ready for the snuggish fall fashions, too.

In Spots.

Those troublesome spots can be worked off, too. Fleshy upper arms, bulging hips, protruding abdomen, bunchy thighs—what a delight to see them trimmed down into lovely lines. My reducing leaflet includes information on general reduction as well as trimming down troublesome spots.

Beautiful Legs.

Women seem to be concentrating on their nether extremities. The beach attire is largely responsible. You may not be able to make Ziegfeld's glorified beauties green with envy, but you can do much to improve the legs as nature made them if you will follow the advice contained in my Beautiful Legs Bulletin.

ARMS PARLEY MAPS 5-POINT PROGRAM

Declaration Being Framed Indorses Hoover Plan of Limitation.

Geneva, July 18 (A.P.).—The arrival of the French ministerial delegation in force today brought about active resumption of private conversations aimed at reaching a final agreement on the declaration with which the disarmament conference will be adjourned.

Hugh Gibson, head of the American representatives, and his colleagues talked with Premier Edouard Herriot of France about the problem of limiting each nation's effectives, which the United States negotiators regard as the heart of President Hoover's disarmament program.

Under the Hoover proposals, armed forces would be limited to the number necessary "for the maintenance of internal order plus some suitable contingent for defense."

Although still unfinished, the adjournment declaration in its present form has five parts.

1. The preamble welcomes the Hoover proposals and recognizes the desirability of strengthening factors of national defense against those of offense.

2. The declaration lists the points on which the conference is believed to be virtually in agreement. These are not at all certain, but will include a prohibition of gas and bacteriological warfare, and perhaps restrictions on air bombing, prohibition of heavy mobile artillery and heavy tanks, and a provision for an international disarmament commission.

3. It asserts that naval negotiations shall continue during the period of adjournment and the Americans hope that the issue of limiting effectives likewise will be committed to definite negotiations by the powers.

4. It declares that adjournment shall be without prejudice to the future work of the conference, the continunty of which is guaranteed by meetings of the conference bureau in September and whenever necessary before the parley itself is resumed.

5. It provides for renewal of the existing armaments truce.

The declaration is not expected to fix the date for the reconvening of the conference, which probably will be in January or February next year.

CHRISTIANITY LINKED WITH AZTECS' RITES

G. W. U. Students Are Told of Confession and Other Familiar Practices.

Numerous parallelisms in the religious practices of the Mayas and Aztecs to Christian forms and ceremonies led the early Christian missionaries in Latin America to believe that the Indians had once possessed the "true faith," but had been misled by Satan, Dr. Mary W. Williams, of Goucher College, Baltimore, said in her lecture before the Conference on Hispanic American Affairs at the George Washington University yesterday.

This belief is partly sustained now by some anthropologists who are of the opinion that these parallelisms did result from actual contact of these ancient Indian cultures with the Old World, the lecturer said. She pointed out that penance, confession, baptism, the monastic system, all were practiced in the New World before the coming of the Spaniards.

The psychological approach used by the clergy in their attempts to convert the aborigines were remarked upon by Dr. Williams. Thus, the appeal to racial self-consciousness of the Indians explains the popularization of the Virgin of Guadeloupe and the canonization of Rose of Lima, who was half Indian, as the patron saint of the Indies.

Other appeals which the Christian religion had for the Indian were quite natural, the speaker said. She cited the statement in a contemporary account that the Aztec women were greatly drawn to Christianity because it was opposed to human sacrifice, the practice of which had decimated the ranks of their own youth.

Because of the great host to be converted in the new world, the clergy were tempted sometimes to seek for mere numbers of converts rather than to instill the ideals of Jesus of Nazarath. Also, because of the great distance from Rome, reforms in the church did not penetrate the New World rapidly, and until the national period, there existed many corrupt clergy.

Despite these difficulties, however, the humanitarian and educational work of the church was great, and the clergy were the best friends the aborigines had, the lecturer asserted.

Today and tomorrow Dr. William R. Manning, of the division of Latin American affairs of the Department of State, will discuss "Revolutions for Independence" before the conference.

FOOLISH BUT NOT FATAL.

President Hoover has not indicated whether he will sign or veto the home loan bank bill which Congress passed in the closing hours of the last session. The measure is being studied by Treasury officials and the Comptroller of the Currency. Indications are that they will vigorously condemn the so-called Glass-Borah inflation amendment, but that the President will sign the bill in spite of this obnoxious feature.

Bankers are almost unanimously opposed to Senator Glass' petty tinkering with the Federal Reserve act. In recent years Federal Reserve notes have become the chief circulating medium. Seven different kinds of paper money are in circulation, but about half of the total volume is represented by Federal Reserve notes. Bankers are looking forward to a still wider use of this type of currency, because it is under control of the Federal Reserve system and can be made to respond to the actual monetary needs of the country.

The Glass-Borah amendment threatens to substitute national bank notes, issued on the security of Government bonds, for Federal Reserve notes because the former can be obtained cheaper by banks in need of money. To that extent the scheme is a definite step backward in banking policy. But a number of safeguards were thrown around Senator Glass' original plan, and indications are that it would not be extensively employed in its present form.

Claims of Senators Glass and Borah that this measure would raise commodity prices seem to be entirely unfounded. Even if the banks should take full advantage of the measure and issue nearly $1,000,000,000 in new currency, that money would lie idle in their vaults unless depositors drew it out and spent it. Rising prices are dependent upon a return of confidence and not upon a larger volume of currency. There is far more currency outstanding now than is needed to conduct the country's business, even in prosperous times. Banks will not pay a tax for the privilege of converting bonds into currency when there is no demand for it.

The Glass-Borah amendment simmers down to a foolish but not particularly dangerous expedient. President Hoover probably will not feel justified in vetoing the home loan bank bill for the sake of killing the amendment. It would be just as well to let the home loan bank program go forward and trust the next Congress to repeal the amendment.

THE ST. LAWRENCE TREATY.

Final judgment as to the fairness of the St. Lawrence waterway treaty must be reserved until that document has been carefully scrutinized by experts and its full import made known to the public. The negotiations which have been brought to a successful close by President Hoover stretch back over a period of 11 years. The problems that have been ironed out are extremely intricate. The welfare of two great nations is involved. It is essential that projects of this kind move slowly and with the utmost caution. There is every indication, however, that the treaty as signed will work to the advantage of both countries.

The St. Lawrence waterway, connecting the Great Lakes with the open sea, is one of the greatest engineering projects of modern times. It offers the Middle West of both the United States and Canada a new outlet for its produce. For the Northeast it offers an enormous supply of power. Proceeds from the sale of power and improved navigation facilities will pay the costs of the project. It is a great major improvement that will add to the wealth of both countries instead of becoming a liability upon taxpayers.

Costs are to be divided equally between the two governments. Assurance is given that Chicago will be allowed to divert sufficient water from Lake Michigan to provide a nine-foot waterway between that city and the Mississippi. The United States yielded to the Canadian demand for two dams instead of one. Montreal interests argued that two dams would provide greater assurance of safety for that city. Some concession was doubtless necessary to overcome the opposition of Montreal, which is really based on fear that its business as a transshipping center will be impaired by the new waterway.

Complete satisfaction with the treaty from all sections of the country is not to be expected. New York is unalterably opposed to the St. Lawrence project and may be expected to fight against any treaty. Gov. Roosevelt is anxious to make a political issue of the project if opportunity is afforded. But no State will be allowed to dictate to the Federal Government in completing the ratification. New York and all other interested States will be treated fairly, but they will not be allowed to block the treaty on selfish grounds. Senator Borah has promised an exhaustive study of the treaty by the foreign relations committee. If the treaty is found to be equitable in all particulars, as between the United States and Canada, its ratification may be expected. Settlement of the dispute with New York is purely a domestic question which ought not to delay the international project.

BONUS ARMY SHOULD GO.

The most serious problem now confronting Washington is the bonus army. Adjournment of Congress has left the besieging veterans without a vestige of hope that their demands for immediate payment of the bonus will be complied with. Yet they seem intent upon refusing the transportation and subsistence that Congress made available to them. Adherence to the crazy scheme of staying in Washington until 1945 unless the bonus is paid is apparently being made a test of the veterans' loyalty to the bonus cause.

No serious disturbances attended the adjournment of Congress. But that good fortune seems to be due to the forbearance of the police, rather than to the good judgment of the veterans themselves. By attempting to occupy the Capitol grounds and to picket the White House the bonus army has brought reproach upon itself. Such tactics must be abandoned.

Leaders of the bonus army indicate that no further disturbance will be made, but the ability of leaders to keep 18,000 disgruntled, hungry and idle men out of trouble may be questioned. If the veterans persist in their unreasonable determination to besiege the Capital until the bonus is paid, disorder is inevitable.

Apparently the veterans have learned nothing from their experience in Washington. The vote in the Senate unquestionably reflected the refusal of that body to be coerced by lobbyists. The huge number of veterans made this lobby all the more obnoxious. The longer the veterans stay in Washington the more difficult it will be for Congress to act favorably on the bonus. It is unthinkable that Congress, whatever its complexion, or the President, whoever he may be, would open the Treasury to any special group of citizens merely because they swarm in the National Capital.

The belief that the public will support an idle army of 18,000 men in Washington over a long period is preposterous. People of the District have given all that they can afford to give. Friends of the veterans back home can not afford to support them in idleness.

Veterans who have the interests of themselves, their friends and their country at heart will take advantage of the Government's offer for transportation home. They have some chance at home of finding work. Here they have no chance at all.

JULES J. JUSSERAND.

The people of the United States learn with sorrow of the death of the former French Ambassador, Jules J. Jusserand. He served his country 22 years in Washington, and was well known throughout the country. Washington regarded him as one of its own citizens.

M. Jusserand was an indefatigable worker and student. His literary attainments and writings would have made him famous even if his diplomatic career had not been exceptionally brilliant. With the vivacity of his nation, and with a keen appreciation of American wit, he not only greatly enjoyed the panorama of life as it unfolded at this Capital, but he was a regular contributor to its gayety. As host and guest, as public speaker and as an occasional commentator upon public matters, M. Jusserand's mind displayed many facets, illuminating every subject that attracted his attention.

Beginning with the great calamity of 1914, the French Ambassador carried a load of responsibility that taxed all his strength. His moral courage sustained a body that was none too robust, and he summoned philosophy to his aid. Throughout the two Wilson administrations the strong position gained by M. Jusserand by reason of long residence and personal popularity was of invaluable service to France. His country owes more to him than it can repay by any posthumous honors that may be bestowed.

The lengthening roll of distinguished sons of foreign nations serving as envoys to Washington bears no name that shines with such brilliance as that of Jusserand.

PROBLEMS FOR OTTAWA.

Not only the quarter of the world's population occupying one-fourth of the earth's surface that is the British Empire will watch with concern the imperial conference which begins in the Canadian capital this week, it is a meeting whose results will be awaited by all nations with lively interest. Attention will be centered not alone upon the practical facts of trade, but upon the somewhat desperate attempt that Mother England will make to gather closer again the ties, grown so loose, which bind the children of the Empire.

In many ways it appears a hopeless undertaking to endeavor to rearrange to any substantial degree trade relations that have grown up between members of this far-flung family and their neighbors and other natural customers. The man-made laws of nations and empires have their limited effects, but economic laws are both universal and inexorable. England may say to the children, "Buy more; only 44 per cent of our exports last year were taken by British dominions and colonies." The dominions will reply that they supplied less than 30 per cent of what England imported.

Three-fourths of England's meat supply comes from Argentina and other foreign sources. New Zealand and Australia could furnish it, but they can not take the large British exports consumed by the other nations. England would supply the scattered family with more of the manufactured products they use, but will find that in each case such plans would interfere with the individual ambitions of each member for the development of its own industrial life. Much more than half of Britain's imports of grain, flour, lumber, cotton and many foodstuffs are purchased where there is reciprocal trade which can not be transferred to any colony.

American exporters, naturally, are much interested in what may be done at Ottawa. In ordinary years the United States sells its products to the British Empire to the extent of $2,000,000,000 a year. Last year it was about half that, with the United Kingdom taking $456,000,000 and Canada $396,000,000, 63 per cent of her total imports. Last year, likewise, American imports from the British Empire fell off about one-half from the high of $1,500,000,000.

The need of England for more trade is great. Her adverse balance of imports is a heavy burden. Since the war she has lost her position as a world creditor nation and is no longer the clearing house for the products of her children of the seven seas. They are now doing the business direct with the United States and other nations that once was largely handled through London. The old system, of course, can not be restored. No doubt the Ottawa conference will be able to make some readjustments in commercial relations that will be useful, particularly to England, but that any great dislocations in trade will result is not generally expected. The experienced representatives who will compose the delegations at Ottawa know full well that any attempt to rearrange and establish trade on a sentimental basis would be neither practical nor lasting.

PROTECTING WORKINGMEN.

About a year ago there was considerable demand for legislation further to restrict immigration. Sentiment throughout the country was strong for the exclusion of alien job-seekers while millions of Americans were out of work. Yet Congress has been in session more than seven months and is ready to adjourn without having altered the immigration laws. No active demand for a change has been heard in Congress. The reason is, of course, that administrative regulations put into effect by President Hoover have virtually cut off the influx of aliens.

For every immigrant who is allowed to settle in this country three leave for their native lands. A few specialists whose services are needed come in without difficulty. But more than two-thirds of the newcomers are women and children coming here to join husbands and fathers who are already established in the American economic system. Workmen who might enter into competition with unemployed Americans have been almost entirely excluded.

On the other side of the ledger the record of the administration is no less commendable. Many of the 100,000 aliens who left the United States during the last year were deported. The Government has been extremely active in rounding up criminal aliens and other aliens illegally living in the United States. The country is so well satisfied with this work that even partisan politicians can find nothing in it to criticize.

Immigration restrictions and the tariff go hand in hand in protecting American workmen from competition with the pauper labor of Europe and Asia. It is strange that the Democratic party does not object to protective immigration laws, but makes a political issue of the tariff, which serves the same purpose. There is no essential difference between allowing foreigners to come here and undermine the American wage scale and allowing them to send in the products of cheap labor. Why do not the great internationalists, who are demanding that foreign trade be unfettered, seek also to sweep away restrictions upon the free movement of labor from one country to another? In that event their assault upon the American wage scale and standard of living would be exposed in its true light. So long as they fight only the protective tariff, the internationalists hope that they will be able some day to convince American workingmen that the way to prosperity is competition with foreign pauper labor.

LEGION WANTS NO DOLE.

Veterans' organizations are not responsible for all of the extravagant legislation that has been passed by Congress for the benefit of ex-service men. The American Legion has just taken occasion to deny that it sponsored the act under which more than $100,000,000 is paid to veterans suffering from disability acquired in civilian pursuits. Presumably the Legion would not object if Congress should repeal this indefensible dole to former soldiers.

The so-called disability allowances are a result of a general practice on Capitol Hill. Congressmen introduce extravagant measures with a view of currying the favor of special groups of veterans. The authors pretend that all veterans are clamoring for the enactment of their bills. Committees to which such measures are referred are sympathetic, but they realize that the Government is not able to finance the most lavish measures. Consequently, they report out some of the less generous bills "to appease" the veterans. As a result the statute books are cluttered with an increasing number of acts extending special benefits to small groups that have no legitimate claim whatsoever upon the Government.

Both Democratic and Republican members of Congress are guilty of following this spineless policy. While refusing to grant the veterans what they want, they scatter about gratuities which the organized veterans do not want and which only a small minority asks for. In this way crippled and maimed veterans are sometimes neglected, while vast sums are squandered on cases that come clearly within the purview of general charity.

The Legion has taken a courageous stand in repudiating this disability allowance act. If other veterans' organizations would do likewise, weak-kneed congressmen might be influenced to eliminate these unwarranted gratuities from the $1,000,000,000 that is paid annually for veterans' relief. When veterans' legislation is returned to the sound basis of relieving those who actually suffered injuries in the war there will be no further public complaint as to its cost.

"All Points East, West, North and South!"

POST HASTE.

"Let's go!" is now the American slogan, except with the bonus army.

Don't be too ambitious; shift into first; don't try to take the old bus over the first hill on high.

This election year will be a paradox; more people interested in business recovery than a pair of parties.

What excuse can lagging Wall street find now?

More commodious commodity prices offer a pleasant spectacle to all except the amateur inflationist economists.

Regarding emergency aid, some governors who are squeamish about State rights may take it with their lefts.

It is something of a handicap to Democrats that they must exploit the help they gave the Hoover program and soft pedal assistance rendered in suppressing Garner pogroms.

Preelection mortality figures from Germany indicate that counting the vote on July 31 will not be as big a job as last time.

At last its reported that the delegates at Geneva have reached full agreement—regarding adjournment.

"Democrats assail Hoover meddling with Congress." What a muddle it would have been if he had not meddled!

Senator Tydings is that optimistic he thinks a beer bill will pass in December, even though it was turned down in this hot weather.

The redistribution of wealth, to suit a lot of folks, would have to be repeated every 30 days.

As soon as we have time we are going to patrol the Capitol until an amendment is adopted restricting congressional membership to one senator from each State having a million or more inhabitants, with representatives apportioned one, two or three among the States according to population. That's plenty.

Ninety thousand persons arrested in a year for violation of the liquor laws, with a million violations happening every day. That's one reason there's going to be a change.

Tammany enthusiasm for Candidate-Roosevelt is exactly like the ardor of the pug fans for Tunney when the Shakespearean scholar won the championship. Puzzle: Find the political Dempsey. PAUL HUDSON.

COURTSHIP.

If I were courting Nellie now,
As once I did long years ago,
Before the silver found her brow
And time had touched my crown with snow,
I'd have to say the self-same things
I uttered, Oh, so bravely then,
And woo with little promisings
The lady of my heart again.

Those days of courtship, swiftly flown,
Lie deep in six and twenty years,
And in that time how much we've known
Of pleasure's smiles and sorrow's tears!
But still were I a gay young blade
And she as light of heart as then,
Those countless promises I made
As bravely I'd repeat again.

What if the purse be light today?
'Twas just as light the day we wed,
And none there was could truly say
What difficulties lurked ahead.
But many a carol gay we've sung,
Though grief has often found our door,
And were I twenty-five years young
I'd woo and promise as before.

The Dog Is a Wild Animal, Too, If Allowed to Run Wild as a Pup

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE first business of law is to prevent, not to punish. And the time to prevent crime is many years before the stage is set for it. The thief must be taught to respect property rights before he learns to steal.

The hungry mind of a small boy is logical. It is easily influenced by sound reasoning. And it is quick to understand and approve a law that is necessary and just.

It is a waste of breath to tell a small boy that he must not steal because it is wicked or because he will be sent to jail if he does. Neither wickedness nor jails seem dreadful to him. Threats don't impress him.

But he is impressed if you say to him: "Billy, life is like a game and we must have rules to keep from getting everything mixed up. One of the rules is that nobody must take anything that belongs to somebody else. The rule keeps you from taking other people's things, but it also keeps them from taking yours. If it wasn't for this rule, boys bigger than you would take your marbles and your pigeons and everything you have. You see, the rule protects everybody, so it's fair to everybody."

The small boy could understand that and see the justice of it. But adults seldom try to explain such things. They merely say "Don't." And the result is that very few small boys understand why stealing is wrong. Their only aid in the practice of ethics is fear of punishment.

Every child is a natural thief. That is, it has no sense of property rights and it takes the thing it desires as innocently as a puppy carries off a shoe.

Thirty-five years ago, one of the joys of boyhood was the stealing of watermelons. He was a rare child of poverty who didn't "snitch" small trifles that he coveted, and rarer still was one who suffered pangs of remorse when he "found" things that were not lost.

Yet these boys were not guilty of moral turpitude. They were not gallows fodder. They are the men who rule America today—and preach high standards of honor.

The boy who might become President may become a bandit if unmerciful punishment makes him a sullen rebel against authority.

It isn't his fault if adults haven't wit enough to make him a defender of ethical rules while he is a child.

An honest man is merely a natural-born thief who received the right training or "got the breaks" until he was old enough and wise enough to scorn dishonesty.

The Air Prophet.

New York Times.

Mr. McAdoo, following his customary mode of travel, flew back to California. On his arrival there he told the reporters that from "indications gathered across the country" he was confident that the Democratic party would be successful in November "by one of the greatest majorities ever recorded."

This is a novel as well as an airy way of finding and reporting political sentiment. The visibility must have been uncommonly good to enable Mr. McAdoo to detect Republicans in all the States over which he flew moving in solid masses over into the Democratic camp. Perhaps he used a camera and has therefore photographic proof of the way in which mountain and plain were fairly alive with Democratic banners and voters.

Campaign Talk.

Kansas City Star.

A certain amount of loose, irresponsible talk is to be expected in any political campaign. Yet there should be limits even to that kind of thing. They are exceeded in the charge of Representative O'Connor, of New York, Democrat, that "the Republican campaign is financed out of the Treasury of the United States," the implication being that tax refunds are made to certain individuals with the expectation that campaign contributions will be made in return. That charge has been made before. If evidence of its truthfulness can not be presented at the time, it had better be withheld. It is too serious a matter to be trifled with, or made the subject of mere rumor or gossip.

Sustaining the Army.

Houston Post.

Since retrenchment in expenditures of all branches of government is essential at this time, reducing amounts allowed the War Department for transportation of men and supplies and for some other purposes is a sensible course. But to cut 2,000 experienced Army officers off at this time would not be safe or sound policy, and everyone interested in national defense will be gratified to know that the House of Representatives has finally decided against the proposal to reduce the officer personnel by 2,000.

Counties Bled by a State.

Chicago Tribune.

The La Follette redistribution of wealth doctrine is working so well in Wisconsin that the counties which are the center of population are bled white. The State government is a leech drawing money away from them so royally that they can not pay their bills and care for their unemployed. Milwaukee contributes to the State from 10 to 12 million dollars more each year than is returned to it. Racine, Kenosha, Sheboygan and other counties containing industrial cities pay in proportion. They have reached a point where they say they can not stand it.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Virginian Rebels Against War Expenses and Hints That Government Should Be Overthrown.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial on the costs of national defense is thoroughly incorrect and misleading. The view which you attempt to discount relative to the cost of national defense is the corrfect one. It is begging the question to state that the total of appropriations for the War and Navy Departments, or $800,000,000, is the sole cost of national defense, and it is a gross injustice to taxpayers who must go without ordinary comforts in order to pay the upkeep of this martial colossus not to emphasize that the cost of national defense includes not only the above $800,000,000 but also the interest which must be paid on the war bonds, and the amount which must be paid for veterans, pensions, &c.

A true picture of the situation shows that the taxpayers must pay 72 per cent of the Federal budget for national defense, broken down as follows: 27 per cent for war pensions, 29 per cent for war debts and 16 per cent for the strictly military establishment that hangs around their necks.

You can not pass over by a confusion of terms such expenditures as $1,137,000,000 for Liberty Bonds, most of which are held by banks and moneyed people, and $1,533,454 for war veterans and beneficiaries and intimate that they are not part of war expenses. They are.

If the people are to be saddled with these expenses, then we have nothing to lose by overthrowing the Government, either by force or by the ballot. Communism has nothing worse than poverty for us.

HEWETT WYLDE.

Skipper Blum Thanks All Who Went to Rescue of the Curlew.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: On behalf of myself and the members of the crew of the yacht Curlew I would appreciate the opportunity of publicly thanking those who gave their efforts to continue the search for the Curlew and at the same time express our deep regret for the anxiety caused by our prolonged absence.

At no time during our absence were we confronted with any situation which we did not anticipate as part of the hazard of an undertaking of this kind. The weather conditions which delayed the Spanish Rose for four days after the arrival of the rest of the fleet affected us similarly and prompted our setting a course for the mainland from approximately 100 miles northeast of Bermuda, our vacation time being limited.

Our return also happened to be adversely affected by wind and weather and though we headed northward into the steamer lanes to communicate with the race commitee, the ships we sighted evidently did not notice our signals. We did not use distress signals because at no time were we in distress.

Any attempt on our part to describe our feeling of gratitude to the Navy Department, Coast Guard and other Government and private agencies and individuals would be feeble. The patience and courtesy displayed by the shore stations in answering the many demands made upon them is most commendable. NAT BLUM, Skipper.

Strong Intimation That Americans Don't Know How to Make Beer, Anyhow.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The beer people are forever telling us what legalized beer will do for American industry, but they are not saying a word about what that beer is apt to do to the country's heart and stomach.

Now here is what a self-confessed expert has to say on the subject. He is Mr. Benjamin de Casseres, a man of very liberal views. In an article in the American Mercury he pays high tribute to the German and Bohemian brews, particularly to Wurzburger and Pilsner. But as to the American stuff (prewar) his comment in substance reads as follows: "The inferiority of American beer to the German article is known. It may be due to the water. In any case, American beer always left a brassy taste in my mouth, while Pilsner and Wurzburger never acted that way. Pilsner, especially, always tasted like fermented moonlight. A night's bout with the purely domestic product left you with a lock-hammer going in your head and your heart pounding and yelping for a dose of schnapps. But after a night of Pilsner I used to feel fresh and all dressed up for more Pilsner."

Now, this is testimony straight from the bung-hole. Champions of 100 per cent star-spangled banner auds are invited to step up front and refute Mr. de Casseres.

FRED VETTER.

War Debts Remind Europe of Costliness of War.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A compelling reason why America should neither cancel nor materially reduce the war debts, even though our European debtors go so far as to repudiate them, is that their very existence will serve as a cogent reminder to Europe and to the rest of the world of the costliness of war. It is my firm conviction that since the World War the sole deterrent to another mad race for superiority in military armaments has been these very debts. Treaties and league conventions are futile things in the path of a nation aflame for empire. The continued existence of the war debts will hammer home the warning: What price war?

George Washington was right! Our less than 10 per cent foreign trade has proved to be a snare and a delusion. We should be grateful to the Congress for their growing resentment against the welshing tactics of our war debtors.

TIGERS END NATS' STREAK WITH DOUBLE WIN, 8-6, 2-1

ON THE SIDELINES
by BRIAN BELL

GEORGE BRESNAHAN'S passion for getting maximum returns out of his University of Iowa track stars now bids fair to give the United States another Olympic standout in the person of George Saling, of Corydon, Iowa.

Saling's career as a track performer follows singularly the pattern of two Hawkeye predecessors, George Baird and Frank Cuhel—both record-makers of sorts—and his development now appears to be combining the best features of each to produce a probable Olympic champion over the 400-meter 3-foot hurdles.

Baird and Cuhel came to Bresnahan as steller material in the quarter-mile and hurdles, respectively, and they both wound up as high-grade double-uppers in those events.

Baird, in fact, was lead-off on an American-mile relay team with Morgan Taylor, Ray Barbuti and Emerson Spencer which set the accepted world's record of 3:13.4 in London in 1928, while Cuhel's low-hurdles mark of 23.2 stood as the N. C. A. A. standard for four years until Jack Keller's extraordinary 22.7 journey in this year's meet.

Saling put in two years as a fair but not sensational high hurdler at Iowa, withdrew for the school year of 1930-31, and came back this year as a world-record smasher in the high sticks. His time of 14.1 in the N. C. A. A. bettered the 14.4 mark Earl Thompson, of Canada and Dartmouth, established in 1920, and which no one save Percy Beard—once—has been able to shave in a dozen years.

BUILT SALING'S SPEED.

Meanwhile Bresnahan was working on his favorite theme that a hurdler could double in the relay, or vice versa. He put Saling to work as anchor man on the Hawkeye mile quartet early in the spring and the Corydon cruiser consistently clipped 50 seconds for his quarter, once getting down to 49 flat.

With his new-found endurance and surface speed, Saling seemed a natural for the 400-meter hurdle event, a race that gets scant attention except in Olympic years.

Clockers at Iowa City have caught him, in time trials, at 52.2 seconds, only one-fifth of a second slower than Taylor's world record, set in America during the 1928 Olympic tryouts, and one a fifth second better than the Olympic standard, set by Taylor and Lord Burghley, of England, in 1928.

Taylor, incidentally, also was an Iowan and a double duty star in hurdles and mile relays, though his alma mater was Grinnell. He ran with Baird on that record-holding all-star mile team on the post-Olympic barnstorming tour of 1928. That quartet's mark, though bettered last year by Stanford's team of Maynard Shove, Ike and Les Hables and Ben Eastman (3:12.8, not accepted yet) is still well ahead of any mile relay times reported during this year's record-shattering series of meets.

SENTMAN HOLDS ON.

Lee Sentman, the University of Illinois stick-skipper, was graduated a year too soon to let his collegiate achievements stand as Olympic qualification, but, though married and settled down in Chicago, he still is figuring on an Olympic berth and is working out daily—of evenings—in the Northwestern University Stadium with an eye to winning some honeymoon expenses to Los Angeles.

In the Wake Of the Game

ALPHONSE (TOMMY) THOMAS, who pitched the Nationals to four victories last week, three on successive days, against the St. Louis Browns, will be the "Sam Rice Day" starter for the natives this afternoon, and, judging from the form he has shown of late, will give Bucky Harris' team plenty of trouble.

Harris had in mind starting "Chief" Elon Hogsett, a southpaw, but intimated last night that he might shift to George Uhle, so that Skipper Walter Johnson would not have to break up his line-up against unorthodox hurling in order to use Rice on the day staged in his honor. It was good sportsmanship on Harris' part.

President Clark Griffith returned from Chattanooga yesterday morning and some of the fans were unkind enough to intimate that he "jinxed" the Nats yesterday, when they failed in their efforts to establish the league's longest winning of the season.

Two young right-handed pitchers worked out with the Nationals yesterday. One was Eric Tipton, former Petersburg High star, while the other was Jack Hudson, who has been playing with the Alexandria Nation-Wide nine.

FIRST GAME.

Stone claimed one of Brown's shoots hit him on the hand in the first and started for the sack. He was called back by Umpire Owens, who failed to find any bruise on the member and disallowed the claim.

In the third Gehringer shot a liner at Brown, which hit the pitcher's glove and bounded back almost to the plate. Berg retrieved the ball and barely missed nipping the runner at first.

Coffman, Berg and all of the Nat infielders participated in the double play which the Nats negotiated in the third.

After Walker misjudged Coffman's fly opening the home third, letting it go as a double, he was shifted to center and Stone placed in the sunfield.

Manush came in at full speed to rob Davis of a hit in the eighth by a reaching gloved-handed catch of a short looper.

SECOND GAME.

After opening the game for the Nats with a scratch hit, Rice took a nap on first and was picked off by Bridges.

Manush, who hit safely twice in the first fracas, brought his consecutive-game hitting streak to 17 when he singled in the opening round of the second.

Crowder did some napping in the second, letting Walker steal second while he was holding the ball.

West was charged with an error starting the second, but it did no harm. Then he ended that round and the next one with fine catches back near the base of the stands.

6 N.Y. Golfers Almost Quit Tourney

Split With Managers on Eve of National Public Links Play.

Start to Make Trip Back After Squabble Over Expenses.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 18 (A.P.).—The New York Team made a dash for home today after a squabble over expenses and golf balls, while most of the 220 entrants in the national public links golf tournament here were practicing for tomorrow's qualifying round.

The six New Yorkers, however, were pulled off a bus by T. J. McMahon and a local committee and agreed to go into further conferences with Louis Hess, team manager.

After a long series of conferences the six New York players, representing some of the best talent in the tournament, got their clubs and boarded a bus for New York. McMahon and a local committee heard about it in time to have the bus held while they raced from the golf course.

Got a Raw Deal, Is Chorus.

"What are you boys doing?" said McMahon on arrival.

"We got a raw deal and we are going home," they chorused.

"If you do, try to get into private golf and see what will happen," threatened McMahon.

"Get off and talk it over," pleaded Harry Clark, a local committeeman.

"I'll see you get treated fairly," said McMahon.

With the bus driver fuming, the six finally clambered out, got back their tickets and their baggage and went into conference again. They claimed that after arrival here Saturday Hess had refused to pay their expenses for more than five days and had told them each man had to depart as he was eliminated. They also claimed the balls furnished them were not regulation.

Hess Declines to Make Public Explanation.

Hess, a United States Golf Association public links committeeman, claimed the balls were regulation, and while he declined to explain his side publicly pending taking it up with U. S. G. A. officials, he proclaimed that "if they stay, they'll stay on my terms."

Louis Kemler, of St. Joseph, Mo., turned in the best practice round of the day, 37—31, for a total of 68, the last nine holes 5 under par. Par is 36—36—72.

Most of the golfers who practiced today around the Shawnee Park course appeared to take it easy, and par and below par scores were few.

Freigau, Ball Player, Drowns After Diving

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 18 (A.P.).—Howard Freigau, 28, of Dayton, Ohio, infielder of the Knoxville baseball team, was drowned early today while in swimming at the pool of the Chattanooga Golf and Country Club.

He dived off the tower about 20 feet high and hit his head on the bottom of the pool, according to club attaches, and drowned before aid could reach him.

Before he came to the Southern Association, Freigau played with St. Louis, Chicago and Brooklyn, of the National League; Buffalo, of the International League, and Toledo and Kansas City, of the American Association.

WILL BAN GRID BROADCASTS.

St. Louis (A.P.).—The Missouri Valley Conference will take action prohibiting radio broadcasts of its football games, Art Ellers, business manager of athletics at Washington University, recently declared.

Ruth Out for Three Weeks With Torn Leg Ligament

Hurt Chasing Fly and Is Carried Off Field by Teammates.

NEW YORK, July 18 (A.P.).—A leg injury today forced Babe Ruth to leave the Yankee-White Sox game on a vacation that is expected to extend three weeks before the "mighty man of the swat" is able to again take his place in right field.

The Babe was injured when he attempted to field a short fly from the bat of Carey Selph in the seventh inning. As his leg gave way Ruth fell headlong to the ground and had to be helped to the dressing room, where an examination disclosed a torn ligament in the right leg just above the knee.

An attending physician said Ruth should be able to walk in a few days, but the Yankees' trainer, Earl Painter, said the Babe would not play ball again for three weeks.

The enforced idleness of Ruth is the second misfortune that has hit the Yanks in the past few weeks. The other was the 30-day suspension of Bill Dickey, star catcher.

A's Regain Second, Beating Browns, 8-1

Freitas Hurts Foot in Making Unusual Double Play and Faces Rest.

Philadelphia, July 18 (A.P.).—In winning their third straight by taking the opening game of the series with St. Louis today, the Athletics also administered the eighth straight defeat suffered by the Browns. The score was 8 to 1, lifting the Mackmen back into second place.

Tony Freitas was credited with the victory, his sixth in succession. He made a most unusual double play in the fifth inning with men on second and third and one out while the Athletics were leading 1 to 0. Fielding Schulte's sharp grounder to the box, Freitas ran over to third base line, trapping Levey and touching him out. Turning like a flash, he ran toward Pitcher Blaeholder, who was well off second. Bluffing that he was going to make a throw, Freitas kept running toward Blaeholder and finally made a lunge and tagged him out.

In doing so, he tripped over Blaeholder's foot and received a gash in his right ankle that put him out of the game. The cut required three stitches and will keep him off the mound for some days.

The four players are Ellsworth Vines, jr., American and Wimbledon champion; Frank X. Shields, Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn.

Vernon Prentice, American champion, announced hard practice would start today for the meeting with the Germans, surprise victors in the European zone of play.

Yankees' 3 Homers Defeat Chicago, 6-4

Gehrig, Lazzeri and Sewell Hit for Circuit to Decide Game.

New York, July 18 (A.P.).—George Pipgras was generous with bases on balls today, but Gehrig, Lazzeri and Sewell came to his rescue with home runs and the Yankees defeated the White Sox, 6 to 4, for their third successive triumph.

The victory was costly, however, the Yankees losing Babe Ruth indefinitely when the slugging outfielder was injured going after Selph's double in the seventh inning.

Pipgras, who issued seven passes, kept the Sox's six hits well scattered, while the Yanks bunched their eight blows off Gaston and Gregory.

Equipoise Is Assigned 134 Pounds Saturday

Chicago, July 18 (A.P.).—Equipoise, C. V. Whitney's great handicap star, today was allotted the crushing impost of 134 pounds for the $20,000 added Arlington Handicap Saturday.

The huge load imposed on the Whitney 4-year-old may cause him to be withdrawn, and, in any event, will serve to encourage owners of other stake performers to make bids for the fixture.

Capital Fans Honor Rice Today

Game With Tigers Is Dedicated to Veteran Outfielder.

Will Be Given Cup in Ceremony Marking 18 Years Here.

WASHINGTON fans will throng Griffith Stadium this afternoon to pay homage to Edgar Charles (Sam) Rice, veteran outfielder of the Nationals. Since 1915, when Sam Rice first came up from the minors, he has worn the livery of the Washington Club, and his many admirers have organized in the hope of making today a long-to-be-remembered one for the popular veteran.

Unlike most of these "days," the fans are not asked to dig down in their jeans and make any contributions. All they are asked to do is to attend the game at the regular price. The Detroit Tigers, headed by Bucky Harris, a former teammate, are here, and in addition to a real battle on the diamond several attractions have been added.

Altrock and Schacht To Stage Stunts.

There will be no speech-making except for the presentation of the silver loving cup by Chairman Wash B. Williams of the committee. Preceding the game, Altrock and Schacht will entertain with their entire repertaire of stunts. Two bands will be on hand, the Elks' Boys Band and the Almas Temple organzation having offered their services.

Other clubs in the league have asked to be represented and all will have one of their players in his home uniform. Berb Pennock, of the Yankees; Ed Rommel, of the Athletics, and Charley Jamelson, of the Indians, already have been designated by their clubs.

Rice's Reco. Ranks Among Best.

Little need be said regarding Rice, either as a player or a man. Always a clean liver, he has been a credit to the national game both on and off the field. As to his record as a player, it ranks among the best. He boasts an all-time batting average of well over the .324 mark and only three times in his long career has he had an average below .300. Always a great fielder, his speed has enabled him to rob opponents of many a hit, while he always has been rated as one of the best base-runners in the major leagues.

Antipodes Claiming New "Wonder Horse"

Wellington, New Zealand (A.P.)—Ammon Ra, three-year-old gelding owned by C. C. Sheath, is expected to develop into another Phar Lap, and eventually to compete in the United States.

Ammon Ra, by Limond from Hayden, has won 15 races in 18 starts for stakes totaling more than $95,000.

The Sheath horse will be entered in the big tests in Australia.

Phar Lap's victory in the Agua Caliente Handicap has encouraged Sheath over the chances of horses from the Antipodes in America despite the subsequent death of the "Wonder Horse."

BREWER AT SAN ANTONIO.

Johnny Brewer, former Georgia Tech baseball star, is playing first base for San Antonio, Tex.

STREAK FOLLOWED SLUMP.

Jimmy Collins, of the St. Louis Cardinals, went hitless 26 consecutive times at bat, then swatted safely 4 out of 5 times in a game.

BROWNS HAD JIG JUNE.

During the month of June the St. Louis Browns not only won two-thirds of their games but had a team batting mark of .324.

Don Boosts Speed Record On Water to 119-Mile Rate

LUSS, Loch Lomond, Scotland, July 18 (A.P.).—Kaye Don today drove his new Miss England III over the silvery surface of storied Loch Lomond at the record speed of 119.81 miles an hour to return again to Great Britain the world speed standard for water travel.

Twice he drove his powerful boat over the measured mile course, breaking the world mark on both occasions. On the first try, made just at dawn, he averaged 117.43 miles per hour. Not satisfied with that, he made another run in midmorning to hang up his new average and for the first time in the history of man traveled at faster than 2 miles a minute over water. On his second trial he attained a speed of 120.50 miles per hour on the run with the wind.

Had Boat Altered, Disregarding Safety.

"I just kept her full out and she responded like the glorious lady she is." Don told enthusiastic admirers as he came ashore after his record run.

The boat was altered on Don's orders after her poor trials at Lake Gardone, Italy, to make her faster and her performance pleased the Englishman immensely. He had complained that the designers of the hull had been thinking too much of his safety and too little of speed when they first built the boat.

"I'm not worrying about myself," he said then, "what I want is the world record back."

Great Britain also holds the world's records for land and air travel.

The world automobile record is held by Sir Malcolm Campbell and is 253.968. The air record is 402.8, and was set this year by Flight Lieut. G. H. Stainforth.

Beat Wood's Record By 8 Miles.

Don's mark broke the old record of Gar Wood, 111.726, by more than 8 miles an hour, and, experts said, put it beyond reach for some time, although the American now is experimenting with a new Miss America in the hope of defeating Don in the Harmsworth trophy race at Detroit this fall and then regaining the world mark.

PIRATES BOW TO PHILLIES IN 11TH, 5-4

Single by Lee Stops Winning Streak of League Leaders.

PITTSBURGH, July 18 (A.P.).—The Pittsburgh Pirates' extra-inning winning streak was snapped by the Phillies today, 5 to 4 in eleven innings.

It was the first time the league-leading Bucs have surrendered in an extra-inning game since May 9.

French pitched the entire game for Pittsburgh, although he was hit hard. J. Elliott worked nine frames for the visitors, but gave way to a pinch-hitter. Collins was credited with the victory.

Lee won the ball game in the eleventh, with a single that scored Hurst who singled and was sacrificed to second by Whitney.

2 Boxers Suspended After Attack by Gang

Trenton, N. J., July 18 (A.P.).—"Baby Joe" Gans, New York boxer, and Joey Harrison, of Garfield, N. J., today were suspended with their managers by the New Jersey State Athletic Commission "until they tell all they know about an attack made on Gans by alleged gangsters" after a bout at Passaic last Tuesday night.

Gans won the fight after being warned by the referee in an early round for "laying down." The commission said it heard he was attacked on the way back to the dressing room by gangsters they characterized as "sure thing" bettors.

MISS BUNTING, 9 TO 1, CAPTURES FEATURE AT ARLINGTON PARK

Marsch Filly Leads From Barrier

Beats Capsheaf by 3 Lengths Under Ride by T. P. Jones.

Finnerty Wins Three Purses for Same Stable at Latonia.

ARLINGTON PARK, Ill., July 18 (A.P.).—Miss Bunting, racing in the colors of John Marsch, of Chicago, easily accounted for the winners' end of the $3,540 Lake Forest Stakes, feature of the Arlington Park program, leading from start to finish.

T. P. Jones sent Miss Bunting to the front at the start, and kept her there to win over C. V. Whitney's Capsheaf by three lengths. The Audley Farm's Royal Blunder saved the show place. Miss Bunting was given little attention in the parimutuels, and paid $19.56 to win, and ran the 5½ furlongs in 1:05.

Jones also brought in Bonny Maureen in the sixth race.

Sylvio Coucci, sensational little New York rider, also booted home two winners—Poppyman, in the first race, and Pancho Lopez, in the third.

Finnerty Sensation At Latonia.

Latonia, Ky., July 18 (A.P.).—Sensational riding on the part of Jockey R. Finnerty injected considerable punch today into what otherwise promised to prove a rather listless program. At the conclusion of the fourth race, Finnerty had completed an unusual triple, unusual in that each of the trio was saddled by Trainer Clyde Van Dusen, and each carried the colors of the Dixiana stud of Charles T. Fisher, Detroit sportsman.

The veteran pilot began his successes astride Elegy in the opener. The score gave the long-shot brigade a real thrill as the mutual betting board posted odds of $74.88. Right back in the second, Finnerty drove home with Fairy Lass, a frequent disappointment of late, at $14.06. Then after failing to show in Wise Mona in the third he climaxed his fine saddle work with a victory on Betty Derr in the fourth, the most pretentious offering on the card. Betty Derr rewarded her backers at $9.36 for $2.

Renaissance Regains Form at Empire.

Empire City Race Track, N. Y., July 18 (A.P.).—John J. Robinson's colt Renaissance, suddenly regaining his top form, scored a hard-earned victory in the Brevoort claiming handicap, a test of 1 mile and 70 yards, which served as the chief attraction here today. The son of Master Charlie got home with a half length to spare over Frank Brown's Condescend, while E. R. Bradley's Cambal, favorite, took the show an additional two lengths back.

Renaissance was well played at 4 to 1, and ran the distance in 1:44 3-5.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: ARLINGTON PARK RACE TRACK, JULY 18.

I got you away flying as Poppyman won the first race. I hadn't finished cussing about Robertson's ride on Magnifico, which finished second, when my selection, Epithet, got home in front in the feature race. Scratches cut down my batting average, but I will be there with bells on tomorrow. When the going gets heavy again, I will have one for you that eats mud. Get the bankroll in condition. Coat Tails, Garden Message and Gay Heart are hot horses at other tracks. Yours,

BILL.

FIRST RACE — MINTOGE has shown flashes of speed and may be the one to upset these juveniles in the opener. ALGERIA looks like the one to make it troublesome for the top fellow. VOLTINA for the third end of the purse.

SECOND RACE—PRINCESS CAMELIA can defeat WISE ADVOCATE in this, I believe. The latter has failed to run back to his spring form, but he is dangerous in this kind of a field. BLACKSTRAP should take care of the others.

THIRD RACE—GLORITONE'S last was the well-known beaut and a repeat of that performance should leave nothing for the others in this field. Of course, CARRY THE NEWS must be reckoned with before the issue is settled. MORALITY is placed third among these.

FOURTH RACE — CON AMORE seems ripe for a winning effort. Is regaining some of that speed of last season and likes the distance. The HERTZ ENTRY looks like it will place ahead of I SAY.

FIFTH RACE—SWIFT AND TRUE did all asked the last time and I am putting the Swift and Sure colt on the top of these. LADY BROADCAST appears to be the most dangerous of the others. WILLIAM T. was a big disappointment the other day. Mighty hard horse to figure.

SIXTH RACE—Looks like the spot for FIDDLER. This one loves the track, as his recent success implies. At top form, FIDDLER may make every post a winning one. GOOD AND HOT to take the measure of JEAN LAFITTE for the place money.

SEVENTH RACE—CAPTAIN ED has been consistent of late and may be rushed into top top money here. NIGHT VINTAGE and KAMBALAYA should take part in the battle.

Stock Prices Sag Slowly; Utilities Lead in Declines

Steel Common Is Steady as Rails Yield Effort to Continue Rally.

New York, July 18 (A.P.).—Although relieved of worries over Congress, the stock market found it hard to be cheerful today and sagged slowly through a listless session.

Second quarter earnings of important corporations scarcely contained the element of surprise, but on the other hand they contained little encouragement, since it is evident that many companies must receive a big boost from reviving business before they can get out of the red, or to a point where profits are even fair.

Several leading shares lost a point or more net, declines being well distributed among major classifications.

Rails Give Up Rally.

Rails yielded their recent inclination to rally against the handicap of traffic shrinkage and to discount possible approval of the eastern consolidation plan to the Interstate Commerce Commission. Santa Fe and Norfolk & Western were down 2 points and Union Pacific 1¾.

Utilities, on the average, returned the largest loss, coincident with the Federal Power Commission's recommendations for control of holding companies and the Alabama Public Service Commission's order prohibiting payment of dividends until reserves have been protected, a decision that closely followed the Wisconsin ruling on payments out of surplus. Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey and American Telephone were down.

Westinghouse had a larger deficit in the second quarter than in the first, but maintained a well-fortified cash position.

Steel Fairly Steady.

U. S. Steel common was fairly steady, but Allied Chemical, American Can, Union Carbide, Auburn, Case and several tobaccos dropped 1 to 2. Homestake Mining and a few inactives, notably Detroit Edison and some preferreds, fought off the general downward trend. Transactions reached the small total of 613,220 shares.

If there was some disappointment over the market's failure to rally on the departure of the national legislators, it was tempered by a realization that stocks had been trying to discount that event.

Reports of reviving investment interest, especially in foreign quarters, are frequently heard, although the amount of actual buying done so far is regarded as problematical and with the bulk of current business obviously coming from speculative sources, the desire to take profits from last week's rise seemed a dominant factor.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

LONDON—Trading on the stock exchange was quiet with small irregular movements, foreign issues and industrials being weak in the morning. There was a fair recovery later in Paris favorites and silk-edged securities with the closing quiet.

PARIS—Prices on the bourse were stimulated by the excellent tendency in New York and strength in French rentes. Indications were that the market would take calmly the announcement of the probable conversion of war loans. Opening quotations were higher and well maintained by generous demands.

BERLIN—Prices opened weak on the bourse as a result of political clashes at Altona and other points, but recovered somewhat toward the close.

Grain Stores on Lakes Drop Million Bushels

Fort William, Ont., July 18 (A.P.).—There was a reduction of more than 1,000,000 bushels in the quantity of all grains in store at the head of the lakes during the week just past, stocks being now at 58,769,366 bushels compared with 63,568,829 a year ago and 63,076,412 in 1930.

CAPITAL'S BUILDING RISES TO 20 PLACE

Advance Made From Sixth Rating With 26 Cities; New York Leads.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Washington has advanced from sixth to second in a list of 26 cities reporting the largest volume of building permits issued in June, the national monthly building survey prepared by S. W. Straus & Co. reveals.

Washington's total of $1,403,240 was exceeded only by that of New York City, $5,861,145. The District of Columbia was ninth on a list of twelve States in a similar comparison.

Reports to the Straus corporation of building permits from 856 cities and towns in the United States show a total for June of $38,151,019. This was a 12 per cent decline from the total of May, 1932, and a 67 per cent recession from that of June, 1931. Scranton, Pa.; Austin, Tex.; Atlanta, Ga.; Lynchburg, Va.; Worcester, Mass.; Jackson, Mich.; Pottstown, Pa., and Omaha, Nebr., were the only cities showing individual gains over June, 1931.

Cities Reporting Gains.

Scranton, Austin, Lynchburg, Jackson and Pottstown were the only cities registering advances over June, 1930. The 26 leading cities as a group presented an increase of 16.8 per cent above May, 1932, and a loss of 62 per cent from June, 1931.

Completion of the first large unit in what will ultimately be a chain of laundries operated by the American Ice Co. and its subsidiaries in the larger cities of the Atlantic Seaboard, was announced yesterday by President Charles C. Small of the North American Co.

The new plant, which is one of the most complete laundry units ever erected, is located in Long Island City and will serve New York, Brooklyn, Long Island and Westchester County. Employment will be afforded to several hundred people.

Following successful operations in this plant, it is the plan of the company to start similar units in other cities of the Atlantic Seaboard.

Starting Business Today.

The young man or woman entering business today is more apt to enter law, medicine or trade than manufacturing or farming, according to a recent study by Investors Syndicate of Minneapolis, with local offices.

During the ten years from 1920 to 1930 the professions increased their number of workers by nearly 50 per cent, domestic service gained 44 per cent and the service industries, such as advertising, banking, insurance, real estate, retail dealers and salesmen, gained 42 per cent. The number of people in manufacturing industries increased only 10 per cent, while farming and mining actually declined.

The great increase in industrial and agricultural output so characteristic of this ten-year period was accomplished with only a small increase in working force, due to greater efficiency and improved equipment. Apparently the service industries and professions have absorbed those who would normally have entered manufacturing or farming.

Frank C. Russell has retired as vice president and a member of the board of the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange to become manager of the Grain Stabilization New York office.

$175,000,000 U. S. Aid Asked To Cut Cross-Florida Canal

Jacksonville, Fla., July 18 (A.P.).—Steps seeking $175,000,000 in Federal funds for a ship canal across Florida were taken today by the Gulf-Atlantic Ship & Canal Association at a meeting here.

The association decided to send a delegation, headed by Gen. Charles P. Summerall, president, to Washington tonight in an effort to obtain the funds through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

"It was learned by an economic survey that ships would save $20,000,000 by avoiding the long trip around the Florida Capes," Gen. Summerall told the association. "There is no reason why a portion of this saving should not be used to assist in defraying the canal's construction and maintenance costs."

Construction of the canal would mean employment for hundreds of men, Gen. Summerall pointed out.

FEDERAL BONDS TOP ADVANCE IN TRADING

Germans Suffer Relapse as Domestics Make Narrow Price Changes.

New York, July 18 (A.P.).—Strength of United States Treasury issues was the encouraging feature of today's somewhat dull and timid bond market.

It was the slowest session in the past two weeks, sales totaling only $8,806,000, par value. Moderate advances slightly outnumbered the declines and the average for 60 corporate loans showed a net gain of one-tenth of a point.

Advances of more than a point were recorded by Treasury 3s, 3¼s and 3¾s of 1941-43, while the other 3¾s were up nearly a point. The Liberties and Treasury 4s were less buoyant, but all held moderate gains. The long-term Treasuries attained popularity following the passage last week of the Glass bill embodying the Borah amendment giving currency expansion privileges to Government issues bearing interest of 2¾ per cent or less.

German Government 5½s and 7s suffered a relapse principally as the result of a recurrence of political disorders in the Reich. Both of the government issues were off nearly 2 points each. Other foreign obligations were irregular. The Australians were under pressure, but most of the Argentines showed gains of 2 or more points.

Domestic loans followed a quiet and narrow range. The railroads indicated firmness at one time, but later sagged moderately. Averages for the industrials and utilities were slightly better, but there were no outstanding gains or losses.

Bankers stated that of the $70,000,000 of public utility bonds offered last week, all but about $4,000,000 had been subscribed by investors.

Susquehanna Silk Mills Placed in Receivership

New York, July 18 (A.P.).—The Susquenhanna Silk Mills, operating properties in Pennsylvania, Ohio, New Jersey and Georgia, was petitioned into equity receivership today when Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard appointed the Irving Trust Co. and Henry Schnelwind, jr., receivers.

The appointment was based on a petition by the Huntingdon Specialty Co., of Huntingdon, Pa., which filed a claim for $405,801 for goods sold and delivered. Liabilities were estimated at $8,838,000 and assets at $21,000,000.

Herbert Bayard Shope, former editor, and Elisha Walker, banker, were today elected directors of the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Co.

CURB TRADING FAILS TO DEVELOP TRENDS

Some Industrial Leaders Lose, While Others Rise at Moderate Rate.

New York, July 18 (A.P.).—The curb market couldn't get its bearings at the start of the new week, and drifted about to the quiet tune of extremely light trading.

The utilities developed a somewhat heavy tendency in sympathy with the "big board" in the late trading. Whether holding company issues were influenced by the Federal Power Commission's report urging Federal regulation was problematical, but it may have been a factor, since some traders are inclined to regard any proposal for regulation as bearish.

Electric Bond & Share and American Superpower issues sagged minor fractions. American Gas & Electric also yielded a little ground. On the whole, losses in this group were of small proportions. Public Service of Northern Illinois, which had been inactive for several days, appeared 3 points higher.

In the oils, Gulf rose a point, while Indiana was off a fraction. This group has turned very dull of late, and traders seem to have adopted the view that the improvement in the petroleum industry in the past few months has been about discounted for the moment by the market for oil shares.

Industrials were mixed. Aluminum Co. was sent up 2 points in the early trading to a new top for the recovery, but it lost more than half its rise as the session wore on. American Cyanamid B was firm. The Swift issues reacted moderately, apparently under profit taking, possibly prompted by the partial relapse in live stock prices late last week. In the chain stores, Great Atlantic & Pacific dropped 6 points to 118 in a thin market.

Bank of France Loses Suits on Russian Gold

New York, July 18 (A.P.).—Judge Francis G. Caffey's dismissal of suits brought by the Bank of France to recover $10,000,000 from the Chase National Bank and the Equitable Trust Co. was upheld by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals today.

The actions involved the purchase by the Bank of France of $10,000,000 in gold ingots from Russia in 1915. The bullion thereafter was intrusted to the Imperial State Bank and subsequently seized by the Soviet government when it came into power. Ten years later gold ingots in excess of $10,000,000 were shipped from Germany to the two defendant banks for the credit of the Soviet State Bank.

WHEAT AGAIN MARKS 44¼ ALL-TIME LOW

Corn and Oats Join Loss Ranks; Provisions Cut Up to 7 Cents.

Chicago, July 18 (A.P.).—Wheat today duplicated its all-time low price record, 44¼ for July contracts, and outdid previous bottom quotations this season for September contracts.

All deliveries of oats and the distant futures of rye went likewise below the season's previous minimum quotations. Unusual slackness of either speculative or export demand for wheat was the chief apparent market influence.

After fluctuating nervously within limits of only ½ of a cent a bushel, a range seldom equaled for narrowness, wheat closed irregular, at ¼ decline to ⅛ advance, compared with Saturday's finish; corn, ½ to 1⅝ off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 7 cents.

Wheat Ignores Cheer.

Notwithstanding that there was much in the day's developments which ordinarily would encourage buying demand for wheat, it proved impossible for the time being to stimulate any large volume of business. Reluctance to purchase continued despite reports from Chicago crop observers that 6,000,000 acres of Canadian spring wheat in southern Saskatchewan were deteriorating as a result of hot, dry weather and dearth of subsoil moisture. It was also vainly pointed out that the United States wheat visible supply had increased only 1,882,000 bushels, compared to a gain of 7,198,000 bushels a year ago.

Weakness of the corn market acted as a late drag on wheat, and there was hedging pressure in wheat all day associated with the movement of the new domestic winter crop. Corn price setbacks were attributed to selling by Southwest holders in a market bare of adequate buying support.

Among sustaining influences for wheat, however, were Liverpool advices of further import demand from Russia for breadstuffs, together with word that harvesting in France was delayed by rain, and that wheat prospects were much less favorable in Italy, as well as eastern and southeastern Europe. There was also a falling off of 4,192,000 bushels in the amount of wheat on ocean passage, compared to a week ago.

Provisions sagged with hog values.

St. Louis, July 18 (A.P.).—St. Louis investment houses which sold to their customers approximately $46,000,000 in Arkansas road district bonds have agreed upon a uniform letter to be sent to the bondholders advocating, in general, that they accept the plan of Arkansas State to give 4½ per cent revenue bonds in lieu of the outstanding road district bonds, it was announced today.

Agreement upon a uniform letter to the bondholders was reached after conferences here last week between Arkansas officials and representatives of the investment houses.

COTTON SELLS DOWN AFTER EARLY GAINS

October Closes at 5.75, With General Market Off 10 to 14 Points.

New York, July 18 (A.P.).—Except for a slight bulge at the opening, cotton was lower today under light offerings influenced by reports that high temperatures were restricting boll weevil activities in the South.

October contracts, after selling at 5.89 at the start, declined to 5.73 and closed at 5.75, with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 10 to 14 points.

The opening was unchanged to 2 points higher on reports of high temperatures in Texas over general absence of rain. There was some trade buying and covering, but after it was supplied the market yielded on comparatively light selling, part of it coming through brokers frequently credited with acting for the cooperative interests.

Prices Work Lower.

Prices worked gradually lower, with July selling off to 5.63 and December to 5.87 during the afternoon, or about 10 to 16 points net lower. Later fluctuations were narrow and somewhat irregular, but closing prices were within 2 or 3 points of the lowest on most positions.

According to some reports, the heated spell has not lasted long enough to materially reduce the boll weevil threat, while there were further complaints of shedding or wilting in sections where recent rains had produced sappy plants.

Other reports indicated that boll weevil damage had decreased in some sections and that the crop was not standing up badly under the hot weather.

Liverpool cables reported covering with continental and Bombay buying in that market, and said there was a broadening demand for cotton cloths and yarns. Exports today, 9,570 bales, making 8,627,771 so far this season.

EARNINGS INCREASED BY HYDRO-ELECTRIC

Du Pont de Nemours Nets 27 Cents on Shares for Second Quarter.

New York, July 18 (A.P.).—Improved earnings for the first quarter of 1932 are reported by the International Hydro-Electric System, a subsidiary of the International Paper & Power Co. Consolidated gross revenue of the system for the quarter amounted to $17,199,274 compared with $12,999,275 in the same quarter last year. After all charges and preferred dividends, the balance at the end of the first three months available for dividends on the Class "A" stock was $1,024,997, against $604,384 in the same quarter in 1931.

A net loss of $73,964 for the first six months of 1932 is reported by the Bohn Aluminum and Brass Corporation. In the same period last year the corporation had a net profit of $935,557. For the second quarter of this year, however, the company showed a net loss of only $763 against a net loss of $73,201 in the preceding quarter.

G. O. P. PLANS FIGHT TO CAPTURE SOUTH

Intensive Campaigns Will Seek to Extend Inroads Made in 1928.

Atlanta, July 18 (A.P.)—Organizing for an intensive campaign in the South this year, the Republicans plan to carry their fight into the hitherto rock-ribbed Democratic States of Georgia, Mississippi and South Carolina.

These States have been Democratic since reconstruction days and the general elections in November have merely ratified Democratic nominees for office. Even four years ago, when Hoover broke the solid South for the first time in many years, Georgia, South Carolina and Mississippi followed their traditional Democratic tendencies. Mississippi and South Carolina increased their Democratic majorities.

Democrats say the entire South and the border States will give big majorities for Roosevelt and Garner in November, but the Republicans dispute this and say they not only expect to hold the four States of Florida, North Carolina, Virginia and Texas, which they captured in 1928, but hope to add others to the Hoover and Curtis column.

Congress Fights Planned.

The campaign for the Republican national ticket will be backed by fights for senatorial and congressional seats throughout the South and in many instances for county and State offices.

Mississippi and South Carolina will have Republican candidates for Congress in each district to oppose the Democratic nominees. This will be the first time in nearly half a century that the Republican party in Mississippi has entered a candidate in each district. The candidates of the party in that State have signified their intention of running as "drys," basing their support of prohibition on the plank adopted by their State convention. This opposed repeal of the eighteenth amendment and modification of the Volstead act. They declared their allegiance to the national party.

South Carolina, where the Republican vote has fallen to a mere handful in recent years, will have candidates in each congressional district and a candidate for the United States Senate. In addition, they expect to nominate candidates for some county offices.

The Republican organization in Richland County, S. C., invited the Democrats to stay out of the primary and go with the G. O. P. in the general election.

Hambright Takes Helm.

In South Carolina a new leadership headed by J. G. Hambright, national committeeman, is in charge of the Republican party. It ousted the old regime headed by Joe Tolbert and this course was upheld by the recent Republican national convention. In the contest before the credentials committee at Chicago, Hambright pledged his organization to work for the upbuilding of the party in South Carolina and Robert Taft, of Ohio, made one of the speeches which influenced the committee in seating the Hambright delegation.

Georgia will have candidates from the Republican party for Congress in at least half of the districts, a candidate for United States senator and a candidate for governor. James W. Arnold, national committeeman, is the party's candidate for senator against Senator Walter F. George, Democrat. He has said that he expects to make a county-to-county canvass of the State.

The Republicans have not yet named their candidate for governor in Georgia, but the State organization expects to do so in the near future.

The development of the battle plans will attract interest as the time for the election approaches. So far, the Republicans have been mapping campaign plans and Democrats are watching and waiting for them to take the field.

Lenox G.O.P. Club To Back Roosevelt

Man Mills Defeated as Delegate Will Spread Movement.

New York, July 18 (A.P.).—Dr. Bernard Lazarus, president of the Lenox Republican Club and unsuccessful primary opponent of Secretary Ogden Mills for district delegate to the national convention, has announced that his organization has voted to support Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt for President.

The club will support the Democratic nominee under "a Progressive standard," Dr. Lazarus said, and is preparing to spread the movement nationally.

"There is no room for either weak or Wall street government," Dr. Lazarus' statement said. "Depression, unemployment, prohibition and Hoover, the stationary engineer, must go. Candidates advocating the re-election of Hoover are a public menace. Defeat them also."

Long Aids Mrs. Caraway In Fight for Reelection

New Orleans, July 18 (U.P.).—U. S. Senator Huey Long announced today, shortly after his return from Washington, that he would go to Arkansas within the next few days to take the stump in the interest of the re-election campaign of Senator Hattie Caraway.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

"SLOWLY but surely the 'clear channels'—the very backbone of American broadcasting—are being whittled away," O. H Caldwell, former Federal radio commissioner declares in an attack on the Federal Radio Commission for yielding to political pressure.

"One by one, the exclusive wave lengths which have made it possible for radio to reach every small town, rural community and farm in the United States, are being ravaged by political pressure and commercial expediency." Mr. Caldwell warns. "Steadily the structure crumbles. Already five of these 40 clear channels are gone as 'rural service' channels."

The former commissioner explained the breakdown of the clear-channel structure started with the unrestricted full-time operation of WGY, Schenectady, and KGO, San Francisco, on the same wave length.

KSL at Salt Lake City now has its clear channel destroyed by the commission's authorization of WJJD, at Chicago, to operate upon the same frequency part of the time. Clear channel Station KJR, at Seattle, Wash., is now doomed to destruction by a 5,000 watt transmitter which the commission has authorized the Chicago Federation of Labor, Station WCFL, to build.

CLEAR channel No. 4 had its doom sealed when the State Department, also charged with the protection of American interests, assented to the simultaneous operation of a 5,000-watt station in Nova Scotia, on the same wave length as Station KNX, at Los Angeles. In periods of good radio reception, the inevitable heterodyne beating in on this channel from the Canadian border will convert KNX from a great clear-channel station designed to serve the vast Rocky Mountain territory into an impotent regional, barely getting out to the San Francisco Bay country without an annoying whistle riding on its carrier.

The fifth clear channel to go into the "ether trash-heap," according to the allegations, is now occupied under a time-sharing arrangement between Station WPG, Atlantic City, and WLWL, New York, the station of the Paulist Fathers.

"What clear channels will go next is a matter of conjecture. WEAF, WABC, WLW, KDKA, WGN, WMAQ—call-letters all sacred in the minds and memories of American listeners—may, within the next twelve months, follow the others over the plank to oblivion and become merely high-powered locals. Perhaps by the time the U. S. State Department concludes its negotiations with Mexico there won't be any clear channels left!"

"THE Case of the Radio Burglar," adapted from the files of the New York Police Department, will be dramatized during the Lucky Strike Dance Hour over WRC at 9 o'clock tonight. Anson Weeks and his orchestra, playing from San Francisco, will furnish the musical interludes.

Edwin C. Hill, for 22 years star reporter of the New York Sun, will be heard over WMAL three times weekly, beginning at 7 o'clock tonight. Hill will speak of affairs occupying public attention at the moment, take the audience behind the scenes with him and describe the personalities that are making the news. His talks will include examination of news backgrounds as well as the events themselves.

ONE of New England's most famous musical organizations has now been made available to WRC listeners. Each Tuesday night, beginning tonight, Walter Smith's orchestra will be picked up from The Shell in Quincy, Mass. The Shell is said to be one of the largest and finest bandstands in the country, with seats available for 30,000 and ample parking space.

Smith and his band are not newcomers to radio. For more than four years they have been a regular feature on the programs of WEEI, Boston.

MINUTE MOVIES (All rights protected by the George Matthew Adams Service. Trade Mark Registered U. S. Patent Office.) By Ed Wheelan

ANSWER DEPT.
DAVID HAND ROBERT COFFEY Sorry but we can't do it!
RUDOLPH JOHNSON Would advise you to study and copy continuously. Can't advise about schools
JACKIE THEILE Yes, the Minute Movie Giants are playing again this Summer and have not been beaten to date. Tomorrow we are presenting the line-up again
MARTIN J. WELCH The drawings are made for ⅓ reduction. Use gillotts #90 pen for drawing and #0 for printing. Draw on a smooth surface bristol board. Any art store can supply you.
WILLIAM B. FILER Yes, we took a vote some time ago and the long serials were favored 5-1. However your idea is a good one.
JIM BLOMFIELD Thanks for the Lincoln scenario but because of so many authentic characters it is unsuitable for our MINUTE MOVIE CAST.
CHAS. HEINEMANN, JR. You have ability but as we have said before, make all drawings in ink after first doing them in pencil.
JOSEPH LOPREST All those stories are copyrighted. Otherwise it's a good idea
DAVID BAKANOFSKY The only way to find out is to try!
ROBERT EILENBERG WALTER WINKLE Don't write your scenarios in "story" form. Make skeleton outline of plot trying always to condense as much as possible
FRED BENCE, JR. Thanks for the nice letter. Your "MINUTE MOVIE" MAGAZINE was very entertaining. Glad to know you. You are such an enthusiastic fan.
JACK FITCH Your drawings show a good deal of natural ability but are too sketchy. Study the way various cartoonists get their effects
MRS. MARQUEZ No, we do not pay for scenarios or ideas
FANS, PLEASE DO NOT SEND IN STAMPS OR MONEY!
BOWMAN LARSON, JR. Where are the lantern slides you were going to send us of a complete "MINUTE MOVIE" serial.
JOSEPH HINTON Your suggestions are splendid and very helpful. Many thanks for the compliment and good wishes

GASOLINE ALLEY Don't miss this feature in colors in The Sunday Post. Another Chapter Ended

ANOTHER ATTEMPT, 1758, WAS TO BE MADE TO DRIVE THE FRENCH FROM FORT DUQUESNE AT THE FORKS OF THE OHIO. AFTER MUCH DELAY WASHINGTON AND HIS VIRGINIA TROOPS WERE GIVEN THE POSITION OF ADVANCE PARTY. AND THE EXPEDITION MOVED AHEAD, EVER ON THE ALERT, EXPECTING AN AMBUSH BY THE INDIANS. BUT THERE WAS NO SIGN OF EITHER FRENCH OR INDIANS.
I'D LIKE TO HEAR SOME BULLETS WHISTLE— WOULDN'T YOU, COL. WASHINGTON?
COMING WITHIN SIGHT OF THE FORT THEY FOUND ONLY SMOKING RUINS. THE FRENCH HAD BURNED IT, HAD TAKEN TO THE BOATS AND RETREATED DOWN THE OHIO. THUS FORT DUQUESNE WHICH HAD COST SO MUCH IN LIFE, MONEY AND EFFORT WAS NOW THEIRS WITHOUT BLOODSHED OR RESISTANCE.
AND THAT'S THAT!
